Was Born In Jacksonville, Son Of Dr. James A. Day

LOS ANGELES (AP)—J. Edward Day, selected to be postmaster general in the Kennedy cabinet, is a Harvard-trained lawyer who favors the scholarly approach to problems.

"It helps if you think it's intelligent to be intelligent," he once said when asked for his formula for success.

SON OF FORMER LOCAL SURGEON

Many Jacksonville citizens will feel personal interest in the appointment of J. Edward Day of Los Angeles, Calif., as Postmaster General in President-elect John F. Kennedy's cabinet, as Mr. Day's father, Dr. James A. Day of Springfield, is a former Jacksonville physician and surgeon.

The postmaster-designate and his brother, William, were born in Jacksonville and moved with their family to Springfield in 1917. William, 48, is a Los Angeles businessman.

J. (for James) Edward Day, 46, was graduated from Springfield high school with high honors in 1932. He was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1936 and from Harvard law school in 1938.

Dr. Day said his son has always used the initial "J" because "there are so many Jameses in our family."

Dr. Day once owned a private hospital on West State street. After transferring practice to Springfield he continued to visit this city regularly, maintaining an office here for several years. The 91-year-old retired surgeon lives alone in his Springfield home. His wife died six years ago.

Day, 46, achieved something of a reputation as a racket buster in Illinois during Adlai Stevenson's tenure as governor and later came west as a regional vice president for the Prudential Insurance Co. of America.

Since his arrival in Los Angeles three years ago he had been active as a fund raiser (YMCA, school Bonds, Democratic party) and in the fields of public housing and urban development.

The other part of his success recipe? "Be born into a happy family and have a built-in fondness for work."

Day keeps his family happy by (1) letting the youngsters have lots of pets (2) showing them the joy of travel.

Day, who calls himself "a fanatical sight-seer," likes to pack up and go off somewhere almost every weekend. Accompanying him are his wife, Mary Louise; son Jimmy, 12; and daughters, Geraldine 17, and Molly, 14.

The children have had hamsters, dogs, cats, a frog and a lizard as pets at one time or another.

Day, born in Jacksonville, Ill., comes from a family of physicians. But he chose the law and completed a tough pre-legal course at the University of Chicago in three years. Although bookish, he still found time for at least one of the boisterous pranks attendant in such situations.

He was placed on probation for taking part in a raid on a girl's dormitory.

From Chicago, Day went to Harvard law school from which he graduated cum laude in 1938.

During one summer vacation he was employed in the Springfield law firm of Stuart-Lincoln—established by President Lincoln.

Later he practiced in Chicago with the law firm of Sidley, Austin, Burgess & Harper.

Adlai Stevenson also was associated with the firm and Day eventually became Illinois commissioner of insurance — after a stint as assistant legal counsel to Gov. Stevenson.

His work in clearing up insurance rackets in Illinois attracted the interest of Carrol Shanke, Prudential president, and led to his affiliation with that company.

Day married the former Mary Louise Burgess of Winnetka, Ill., just prior to World War II. He soon went on active duty with the Navy for four years.

Estimate 50 To 60 Dead, 19 Americans

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—A U.S. Air Force transport plane carrying American students home to Christmas holidays in England crashed into the heart of historic Munich Saturday strewing flaming wreckage over a street full of shoppers. Police estimated between 50 and 60 persons died.

Besides the 11 vacation-bound college students, the seven-member crew of the two-engine Convair and an American civilian passenger perished when the plane sheered off a church steeple and plummeted into a loaded streetcar.

The students, who attended the University of Maryland's junior college in Munich, ranged in age from 16 to 21 years old. Laughing and joking, they had taken off only minutes before from Munich-Riem Airport to join their service families in England for the holiday vacation.

Police estimated at least 35 persons either aboard the streetcar or passing by died when the giant plane engulfed the trolley with flames 150 feet high.

The death toll may not be known for days. "The bodies are nothing but charred pieces, making it an almost impossible task to identify them," said a police official.

Mayor Hans Jochen Vogel said only two bodies of German victims had been identified late Saturday night, although 31 charred bodies have been recovered from amid the wreckage of the plane and streetcar.

Police, firemen and U. S. and German army units still were working to extinguish smouldering fires and clean up the wreckage.

A 24-year-old German girl who suffered severe burns told doctors the sea of flame from the plane and a broken gas main swept over busy Bayerstrasse "like the end of the world."

At least 16 persons were known to be in the hospital with severe injuries. Several were in critical condition. They included motorists dragged from blazing automobiles drenched with gasoline Many others were treated for minor injuries.

"There are so many arms, legs and bodies still lying about, it is impossible to say how many were killed," a police official said.

The plane, with the exception of a wing and the tail, was destroyed. Police said that soon after the crash flames stretched 100 yards and shot 150 feet in the air.

One of the first policemen on the spot said he did not believe anyone escaped the rear car of the two-car streetcar.

"The streetcar went up in flames in a second. I heard first a few loud, horrified screams of the occupants, and then everything was still. I don't think anybody got out of the rear car, I saw a few people in wild flight from the first car. Others were crouching and hobbling through the sea of flames."

It was the second plane disaster to affect a great city in two days. Two planes collided over New York city Friday and fell on different sections, bringing death to 136.

The plummeting plane here struck the streetcar on Bayer Strasse at the corner of Martin Grief Strasse. St. Paul's church is about 300 yards to the southeast. About 270 yards south of the church is Maria Theresienwiese meadow.

The American students were 16 to 21 years old, most of them children of U.S. military personnel stationed in England.

They had boarded the plane at Munich-Riem Airport a happy, laughing, kidding lot. They were to fly to Northhold Airport, England, there to scatter to their families for Christmas.

The transport left at 2:05 p.m., in foggy weather. Four minutes later, witnesses said the plane hit the steeple of St. Paul's Roman Catholic church in the heart of the city. It sheered off the steeple, flew on another couple of streets and then, with a roar, dived into Bayer Strasse and exploded.

A huge area went up in flames as the plane smashed into the streetcar and gasoline spewed over nearby cars and buildings. Witnesses said people walking along the street burst into flames as the gasoline drenched them.

More than 50 fire engines, German as well as from the U.S. Army in Munich, rushed to the scene. A mile-square area was sealed off.

Germans said it reminded them of the wartime air raids on the city.

"There was fire, and damage, and screams and bodies everywhere," a 55-year-old man said.

Casualties listed included:

Assistant Flight Engineer Tech. Sgt. Jacob A. Pas 30, son of Mrs. Mary Pas, 2046 North Western Ave. Chicago.

Seek Cause Of Collision; Death Toll Rises To 136

NEW YORK (AP) — History's worst air disaster took on an added note of heartbreak Saturday as investigators began a sweeping hunt for the elusive error — or malfunction — that caused two planes to collide in the air.

Only a few fragmentary hints emerged.

The collision paralleled another over the Grand Canyon on June 30, 1956, between planes of the same two airlines, with 128 killed. Exactly the same number aboard the planes died in Friday's collision.

In Brooklyn, the CAB forbade removal of any of the twisted wreckage, a move that caused friction with city fire officials and even some defiance.

Fire Commissioner Edward F. Cavanaugh said that failure to move the wreckage created hazards for firemen and others searching for bodies in the area.

"The lives of firemen are at stake," he said. "A wall could collapse on them. I made the decision that their safety was paramount and so I'm moving the wreckage."

The count of the dead in the area was at times confusing, since many of the bodies were brought out in segments, leading to varying counts of just how many had been recovered.

Police at one time counted 92 bodies in the morgue. At another time, the number was given as 90. The exact total was uncertain.

However, the 84 jet plane deaths, plus those reported missing or known dead in the area showed a total of 92. Police and fire officials listed these eight residents dead or missing:

Wallace Lewis, 90, caretaker of a church destroyed by fire; Charles J. Cooper, 34, a sanitation worker; Joseph Colacino, 27, a Christmas tree salesman; his uncle, John Opperisano, 35, of Massapequa, N.Y.; William Lahyre, a meat store operator, and Edward Lewis, James McAuliffe, Torres Carman Lopez, all of Brooklyn.

There appeared a possibility that the two Lewis's listed might be the same man, which would

Selassie Returns In Triumph To His Capital, Revolt Ends

LONDON (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie returned in triumph to his capital of Addis Ababa Saturday. Leaders of the abortive palace revolt in Ethiopia were reported to have fled before his arrival. Some may have committed suicide.

Reports that the rebellion had ended in bloody failure poured out of Addis Ababa. The city was reported rapidly returning to normal.

Diplomats in London also heard that four ministers who served the 68-year-old "Conquering Lion of Judah" were shot as hostages Friday as he landed in Asmara, 400 miles north of the capital, and began to make his way back home. He had rushed back from a state visit to Brazil when the revolt broke out Wednesday.

The slain officials were said to have been the ministers of defense and commerce, the acting foreign minister and the deputy minister of information. The minister of health was reported missing and the ministers of public works and finance fled the city when the revolt broke out.

As for the rebels, diplomatic sources in London reported that the ringleader, Gen. Mulugeta Bulli, and his commissioner of police were dead and presumed suicides. The rebel premier, Ras (prince) Imeru, former ambassador to the Soviet Union and to India, was reported either arrested or dead.

Clark Mollenhoff, Washington correspondent for the Minneapolis Star and Tribune and the Des Moines Register and Tribune, reported from Addis Ababa, where he is on a study tour, that the city suffered considerable damage in street fighting between the rebels and the large segment of the army that remained loyal to the emperor.

He said the rebels were said to have killed as many as 16 high government officials, including three Cabinet ministers.

No Americans were hurt in the fighting, Mollenhoff said. It began shortly after the rebel government was proclaimed and lasted until about noon. Haile Selassie returned three hours later.

About 10,000 troops were said to have rallied to the emperor and pursued the rebels with bombing and artillery fire.

Woman, 90, Prepares Dinner On 70th Wedding Date

MORRIS, Ill. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Stine are holding open house Sunday to celebrate their wedding anniversary. In addition, Mrs. Stine will prepare a family dinner for 30 close relatives. She insists she'll take care of everything herself.

The anniversary is the couple's 70th. Stine is 94, his wife, Julia, is 90.

What's the recipe for a long, successful marriage? Tolerance, said Stine, and added: "We do have arguments, but they clear the air."

The Stines live alone, are in good health and they do their own work. They were married Dec. 15, 1890.

Handling a big job like preparation of a family dinner doesn't phase Mrs. Stine. Recently she arose early one morning and baked three fruit cakes before breakfast. Baking is a hobby with her as is gardening. She belongs to a local garden club and insists on entertaining when her turn comes around.

Stine wears glasses only when he reads, but he reads a couple of books a week from the Morris Public Library as well as three newspapers every day. He also works crossword puzzles, plays cards and watches sporting events on television.

Stine has been a retired farmer 35 years. Before retirement he was Grundy County highway superintendent 12 years.

The couple has a daughter, Mrs. John Ullrich, and a son, James F. Stine, living in Morris. One son is dead. They also have eight grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grand child.

Longevity is not uncommon in the family. An uncle of Mrs. Stine's lived to be 113. An aunt died last March at 98.

Dag Charges Soviets Trying To Force Him Out Of U.N. Job

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold charged Saturday night that the Soviet bloc is carrying on a continuing campaign of misrepresentation against the U. N. Congo operation in an effort to force his resignation.

The secretary-general was obviously angered by weeks of Soviet-bloc attacks. He spoke to the General Assembly after U. S. Delegate James J. Wadsworth said the Soviet Union "wants civil war in the Congo in order to promote its own evil designs."

Hammarskjold broke into the assembly's debate on the situation in the Congo—put on the agenda by the Soviet Union—to say the real issue "might better have been called the situation in the United Nations."

"We are facing a great threat to this organization," he said. "A consistent effort has been made in order to create conditions for a drastic change in the administrative structure of this organization and for that reason to corrode whatever confidence may remain in the secretariat."

Hammarskjold in a reference to Soviet Premier Khrushchev said "a certain party" asked him to resign months ago "in a chivalrous way."

Hammarskjold said he had done as much as he could within the limitations set by the U. N. Charter and resolutions of the assembly and Security Council.

He said a strengthening of his mandate to keep peace in the Congo "is highly desirable, as the authority of the United Nations has been challenged in many quarters."

The secretary-general said the United Nations should use its influence in the Congo to get Parliament reconvened; the army reduced to its constitutional role, and a legitimate civilian government established.

Hammarskjold also said secessionist tendencies must be broken. He told critics he had worked to Belgian technicians to quit the Congo but steps must be suggested "as to how the gap thus created could be filled by the United Nations itself."

Wadsworth declared that the Soviet Union was endangering international peace with "a straight policy of rule or ruin," designed "either to weaken and divide or to gain power in the Congo for those who will do the will of Moscow."

He spoke after Bulgarian Deputy Foreign Minister Milko Tarabanov charged that the United States was paying the army of Congolese strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu, supported by President Joseph Kasavubu. Wadsworth said the United States was channeling all aid to the Congo through the United Nations—but the Soviet Union seemed to be backing the Stanleyville faction of deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba in opposition to the constitutional authorities.

The U. S. ambassador opposed a pending resolution sponsored by eight neutralist supporters of Lumumba, now a prisoner of Mobutu's troops.

This resolution urged the immediate release of all political prisoners in the Congo, the immediate convening of Parliament there under U. N. protection, quick measures to keep armed units from mixing in politics and the withdrawal of all Belgian personnel, civil as well as military.

Wadsworth called it a "many-sided attempt to intervene in the domestic affairs of a member state."

The resolution drafted by the United States would have the assembly ask Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to help Kasavubu "in establishing conditions under which Parliament can meet and function" free of outside interference.

It asked Hammarskjold to get foreign military personnel out of the Congo, called on all countries to refrain from sending military aid there except through the United Nations, declared against violation of the rights of any prisoners in the Congo.

Little Stephen Baltz Loses Battle For Life

NEW YORK (AP)—"The little boy closed his eyes and went to sleep."

This was the way the hospital reported that 11-year-old Stephen Baltz died at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Now the lad is with 83 others who rode a sleek, speedy jet on a journey to death.

Only the boy came out alive from the incredible wreckage which lay in a teeming Brooklyn street after colliding Friday with another plane in the world's worst air accident.

Each moment the red-haired youngster clung to life was a moment of triumph. In Methodist Hospital in Brooklyn, the prayers were many that he would rally, that he would survive the dreadful burns over 80 per cent of his body, that his broken bones would one day mend.

Clinging to hope were his distraught parents—Mr. and Mrs. William Baltz of Wilmette, Ill.—who stayed near him, praying that the wonders of science and medicine as well as the boy's will would save him.

In the morning—24 hours after the crash—there was a slight note of optimism, as the hospital reported that, "He has shown some response (and) it is hoped ttah this progress will continue."

"He's extremely brave, well-contained and uncomplaining," said one of the attending doctors.

Then in late morning there was feverish activity by doctors and nurses. The tension of determined people embraced in a losing battle communicated itself to hospital personnel.

At 1 p.m., Stephen lost the battle.

A weeping hospital worker, hardly able to control her voice, said: "The little boy closed his eyes and went to sleep."

The father came to speak with newsmen. The tears—shed in the privacy of the boy's room—were gone now. Controlled, bravely, William Baltz said his son was dead. There was more to say.

"I appreciate very much the attention and kindness of the people of the city of New York. The police department and fire department were superb. The effort to save my son and the work done here in Methodist Hospital was simply magnificent."

The mother was under sedation in a private room of the hospital.

The burns and bruises contributed to death, but a hospital spokesman reported that the major cause was extensive flame damage in the lungs.

"There was very little that could be done to stop the lung damage," said the Rev. Donald S. Stacey, hospital chaplain.

Former Decatur Man Was Pilot Of Munich Plane

LONDON (AP) — A former Decatur, Ill., resident was listed as the pilot of the C131 Convair that crashed Saturday in Munich, Germany.

The pilot was Maj. John K. Connery, son of Mrs. Margaret Russell of Auburn, Ala., a former resident of Decatur.

Connery, 40, was killed. So was his son, 18-year-old John Jr., one of 13 American students killed in the crash.

Connery is survived by a wife and two other sons, all living in England, and an aunt who resides in Decatur.

Survivor In Hospital Tells Of Disaster

EDITORS NOTE — Thea Schneider, 24, an employe in a Munich textile factory, survived with severe burns Saturday when a U.S. Air Force transport plane crashed in the heart of the Bavarian capital and slammed into the streetcar in which she was riding. Here she tells of the disaster from her hospital bedside.

By THEA SCHNEIDER

(As told to The Associated Press)

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — We had been shopping for Christmas, for the children. My husband Joseph and I were standing in the second car of the No. 10 trolley.

Suddenly — I'll never forget it—there was a terrific bang. Then there was sudden silence. And — it was horrible—a blast of yellow, sulphury fire.

Until the doctors told me later, I never knew that it was a plane which had struck our streetcar.

We had boarded the No. 10 at Stachus Square (a busy intersection in the heart of Munich).

I don't quite know how long we had been riding along peacefully, chatting.

But I will never forget that awful yellow light blinding me. It was like a giant fist. I was thrown out from the aisle on the platform at the rear of the car.

Somebody, I think it must have been my husband, grabbed me and pushed me from the car. My slacks were burning.

I stumbled through the smoking, flaming debris. I didn't realize what had happened. I just wanted to escape, to save my life.

As I went on, trying to get away from the flames, I remembered Joseph. We were somehow separated in the chaos. I screamed for him.

Suddenly, I saw several men by my side. They threw me on the ground and rolled themselves on top of me to put out the flames. I heard one say, "She is burning bad."

I don't remember exactly what I thought at the time. I think I thought most of those presents we had saved so long for—and hoped that they hadn't burned to cinders.

Then I know I thought of Joseph. I looked around and, thank God, I saw him being put on a stretcher. I was very happy because I knew he was all right. (The husband was reported in critical condition Saturday night).

I was so dazed, I did not feel any pain. Then later, I woke up in the hospital.

I do hope Joseph and I won't have to stay away from the children too long. We are Germans from Yugoslavia. We have lived here since 1945, when we were expelled from Yugoslavia.

Joseph is a teletype mechanic employed with the German post. I work in a textile factory.

It is tragic we are in hospital, but thank God we are both alive

I wonder if I will get out all right for Christmas?

Kennedy Cabinet Complete; Accent Is On Youth

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy completed an accent-on-youth Cabinet Saturday by selecting Los Angeles insurance executive J. Edward Day for postmaster general.

The Cabinet choices average 47 years of age—the lowest of the 20th century. Kennedy himself is 43. Day is 46.

With Day by his side, Kennedy stood beneath a coconut palm on the sun splotched patio of the Kennedy home. He told a news conference it was a great pleasure to have a man with "a distinguished career in government and business" take over "the largest business in the world." The Post Office Department, he noted, has more than 500,000 employes and a $3.8 billion budget. Both Kennedy and Day stressed a determination to improve the efficiency of the postal service.

Wide Areas Hit By Cold, Snow, Freezing Rain

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cold weather mixed with sleet, rain or snow chilled a wide stretch of the country from the northern Rockies to New England Saturday.

Freezing rain iced sections of eastern Oregon and Idaho, and rain and showers put a dampener across the Northwest from coastal Washington into northern California.

Snow fell only as flurries from Montana into Minnesota and in portions of the Northeast, but locally heavy snow squalls deepened a 1½-foot snow blanket already covering the area just east of Lakes Erie and Ontario.

Midday temperatures clung to the 20-degree range over most northern states and occasionally failed to climb out of the teens along the northern border. Readings ranged into the 30s southward and up to the 50s across the South.

Sunshine brightened the southern two-thirds of the country and warmed Los Angeles and Miami up to the middle 60s. However, a night of frosty temperatures was expected from the central Gulf region into northern Florida.

Farmer Last Individual, Says Speaker At 43rd Farm Bureau Meeting

The farmer is the last independent person in America and thus far he has shown no inclination to trade his freedom for the so-called security offered by a government that is becoming more socialistic every day.

Those were the words of Harold Neal of Downers Grove, Ill., head of the Illinois Agricultural association insurance department, when he addressed the 518 Morgan County farm people who attended the 43th annual meeting of the Farm Bureau.

"Don't sell out, even if it's rough," Neal advised his auditors assembled after luncheon at McClelland dining hall, MacMurray College.

"Since 1935, the American people have put security above everything else," Neal said. "Today we have a high standard of living, perhaps the highest ever attained by man but we are unhappy. Fifty-one percent of the hospital patients are mental cases; and another nine percent more, still on the outside, are seriously handicapped by mental illness.

"Our survey shows that only five per cent of the aged need medical help from society, yet the politicians are screaming for government help to all.

"And as a so-called Christian nation, we still let our prejudices run away with themselves to such an extent that we fight a fellow human being simply because his skin is of another color. And our income tax returns show where we are drifting. If the churches had one-half, one-third, of the money that is charged to them in income tax returns, this country would surely be the most Christian nation of all time."

Neal concluded, "Nobody can give you security, you can find security only in yourself."

Reports Heard

Roy Nickel, Farm Bureau president, presided at the business meeting which began at 9:30 a.m. in Annie Merner chapel. DuBois; Boyce Moore, I.A.A. director; Mr. Neal; President Nickel; Harlan A. Williamson, who led group singing to the organ accompaniment of Lyndal Symons, and Mr. Nienhiser.

Mayor DuBois and President Michalson extended their greetings to the assembly, and the J.H.S. a capella choir of 60 voices, directed by Ray Spring, sang four numbers. In response to applause, the group sang an encore and left amidst thunderous applause that said, "Thank You."

FIND WOMAN SHOT TO DEATH ON STEPS OF HOME

Jewish Holiday Festival Held At State Hospital

On the evening of December 13, the first candle on a nine-branch candelabra, called the "Menorrah" was lighted in Jewish homes all over the world, beginning the annual observance of the Festival of Hanukkah. The Festival of Hanukkah is observed for a period of eight days and is dedicated to the idealism and heroism of the Jewish people, as exemplified by the struggle and suffering of the Maccabees of yore.

It was in the year 168 B.C., that Antiochus Epiphanes of Syria conquered Jerusalem and sought to impose upon the Jewish people, the degraded paganism of his Syrian culture. Under the brave leadership of the Maccabees, a small group of valiant men rose in rebellion; and at last in the year B.C.E., this small band recaptured Jerusalem.

After their victory, the Judeans reconsecrated the temple which had been desecrated. According to legend, oil for the altar light, apparently enough for only one day, lasted for eight. Hence, the holiday is celebrated for eight days with an additional candle blessed each night. The lighted candles symbolize the added strength which can come to those who fight for a sacred cause.

On Thursday morning, Dec. 15, ladies from the Sisterhood of the B'rith Sholom Temple in Springfield, came to the Jacksonville State Hospital, where they presented a luncheon for the patients, following the Hanukkah services conducted by Rabbi Meyer Abramowitz. Hanukkah is a happy holiday, and the patients participated in the service of praise and thanksgiving.

Ladies of the Sisterhood who presented the luncheon were Mrs. Bert Moscowitz, Mrs. Clyde Meier, Mrs. Herbert Levy, Mrs. Burton Eisenberg, and Mrs. Joe Broida.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Martin

MURRAYVILLE—The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Martin will be Friday, Dec. 23rd. The Martins, who plan no celebration, have resided in Murrayville since 1921. From 1921 to 1952 Mr. Martin was in the meat and grocery business and since that time has been an employee of the State of Illinois. Before moving to Murrayville the couple lived at Pearl, in Pike county.

Mrs. Martin is the former Mary Etta Hanback. They were married Dec. 23, 1910 at Bowling Green, Mo. They have one daughter Mrs. Maxine McMillan, Jacksonville; a granddaughter, Mrs. George Eilering and two great granddaughters, Linda and Julie Eilering, all of Jacksonville.

Weddings Parties and Clubs

Joanne Dippel

Mr. and Mrs. George Dippel of Loami announce the engagement of their daughter Joanne, to James H. Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs Horner S. Myers of Camp Point. An early spring wedding is planned.

Miss Dippel graduated in 1956 from Waverly High School and has just completed work at Illinois Normal University for her bachelor of science degree in education.

Mr. Myers graduated from Central High School, Camp Point, in 1954, and is engaged in farming in that area.

Romantic Impulse Sends Sleuth Seeking A Lost Cigar Store Wooden Indian

This is one of a series of articles on the tracing of missing persons compiled from actual case histories made available to this paper by Tracers Company of America.

It happened in New York, as zany things often do. A boy and girl carved a heart and cupid's bow on a cigar store wooden Indian. Some years later, a letter, postmarked from a small community in Wisconsin, reached the desk of Dan Eisenberg, America's No. 1 tracer of missing persons

Eisenberg blinked and read the letter again. Would he, asked the writer, consider tracing a missing cigar store wooden Indian? At that time Eisenberg would consider tracing almost anything. He sure needed the business. His second reading convinced him the request was genuine. The wooden Indian has marked the spot where the young lovers first met. They were now about to celebrate their fifth (wooden) anniversary. The young wife had been seriously ill and depressed. As a sentimental gag surprise, to cheer her up, the husband had written to the cigar store to see if he could buy the wooden Indian.

The letter was returned, marked Not Here. The wooden Indian had vanished too, when the cigar store went out of business. Dan Eisenberg had only the name of the defunct store, the location and the cupid's bow identifacation of the wooden Indian to go on — but this was 100 per cent more than he has on most of his real life missing people. It took only a few hours to track down the missing Indian, which had been sold to a boys' club and finally dumped in a junk yead Eisenberg fetched it, had it cleaned, crated, and forwarded to Wisconsin. And, as far as he knows the youthful lovers are living happily ever after.

That's the kind of tale Eisenberg doesn't particularly talk about, because nobody believes it, but when he states he has traced everything, from wooden Indians to lost dogs, he means it literally. In his own way, Dan Eisenberg is even more fantastic than some of the stories he collected in his 35 years as a private eye. In fact, he doesn't like that term—private eye.

Much Desk Work

He's sometimes known as Mr. 101—for his private detective license number 101, State of New York—and often is frequently referred to as the "armchair detective," because most of his work is done at his desk. He bears a strong intellectual resemblance to Hercule Poirot—Agatha Christie's famous fictional sleuth. Like Poirot, Eisenberg subscribes to the belief that most mysteries are mental challenges that often are solved simply by using those "little gray cells." But there any resemblance between Dan Eisenberg and those popular fictional whodun't heroes stops. He has none of the earmarks of the super-sleuth. He is a quiet, serious man of 54 who might be mistaken for a college professor (tho he never even got as far as high school and who fits very easily into the 4:22 bankers' special for Long Island commuters. He doesn't walk with a swagger, talk out of the side of his mouth, smoke a pipe, or wear a trench coat. And he never carries a gun. He can't recall that he has ever read a detective novel, although his wife is an avid whodunit fan.

Eisenberg is downright timid about showing off his New York City staff of investigators. "I just don't like to disillusion anyone." He says apologetically, "honestly, there isn't much romance in this business." And there isn't, when viewed from the inside of his Madison Avenue skyscraper offices. And his investigating staff consists of mild mannered-men who look a bit lost themselves—among all the millions of records, street directories, telephone books, and card indexes that—along with brains—comprise Eisenberg's chief working tools.

Extensive Research Data

His inner sanctum is jammed with telephone and city directories covering almost every city in the United States, Canada, Mexico, and foreign countries, and dating back for years. Social registers, college yearbooks, who's-who-in-what directories covering—almost everything from barge owners to bankers. Eisenberg has them all. He keeps adding some 3,000 new names and addresses daily to these files—names of people who were reported in the news for one reason or another, who have been sued, bought a house or a car, been graduated from college, or rented an apartment—or news of births, deaths, and daily arrivals of buyers.

His outstanding record collection even covers the arrival of passengers on all ships for the last 100 years.

No Women

He doesn't hire women investigators. "They talk too much to be good detectives," he says. He tried it only once. When a beauteous blonde asked for a position he decided a little glamour wouldn't hurt the business, so he hired her. Within one month blondy handled her assignments like a new broom, swept up 32 bill dodgers, 16 hotel skips, 40 missing stockholders, and 10 missing heirs. Then she was given her biggest chance—to locate a missing husband for an alimony-conscious wife. Eisenberg never saw her again. He learned later that she had found her man and married him.

A Typical Day

In one day recently (a typical one) Eisenberg operators bagged: eight missing husbands and one lost wife. Two of these husbands had lit out with their offsprings after their wives had been granted custody of the children by courts. Twenty-two missing debtors, including a hotel bill jumper, several rent dodgers, a few merchants who had done the Arabian tent folding act, and others who had thought it was easier to run away than pay up. (It isn't, says Eisenberg.) Three heirs to a $50,000 estate, and eleven other missing legatees to smaller inheritances. One bigamist. A brother and sister reunited after 40 years. One embezzler who had collected down payments on new homes—and then taken a powder. And 68 lost stockholders who—as a group had more than $55,000 coming to them.

I saw him solve what to me looked like an unsolvable case in a few minutes—with nothing more than an old Yonkers street directory and a telephone call. The client's letter arrived in the fresh batch of mail. It was from a woman in the midwest who seventeen years ago had an illegitimate child fathered by a man who said that he was from Yonkers N. Y. She needed to locate him. It was urgent. All she knew was his name, a common one, and she wasn't sure of the spelling. It was a name that could be spelled two ways, such as Smith or Smythe. Thru a process of elimination, deduction, guesswork and some clever questioning, Eisenberg hit it right on his very first telephone call. But he came up with bad news for his client. The father of her child had been killed on Luzon in World War II.

Not All Cases Accepted

He frequently has to turn down cases. Shortly after the close of World War II, a GI appeared in his New York office and asked if Eisenberg could find his mother. She had left him in an orphanage, he said, and he had always wondered about her and hoped some day to be able to find her and take care of her. It was just another routine request. Eisenberg gets orphan cases daily.

The soldier appeared calm, earnest, genuinely sincere. But presently Eisenberg's right - arm secretary slipped a note in to him. "He wants to kill his mother," it said. He had flippantly and bitterly blurted out the truth to the secretary as she ushered him into the inner office. Over the years he had built up a mean hatred for the mother who abandoned him. Whether he actually would have carried out his murder threat, Eisenberg doesn't know nor is he interested in finding out. She was one mother, he decided, who was better off missing.

Ironic Twists

One of Eisenberg's most recent clients was a woman from Pittsburgh who wanted to locate the husband—who deserted her and their four children in 1920. One of her children, now in his forties, had recently sold an invention to an automobile manufacturer and he got two and a half million dollars for the patent rights. Before he deserted, the father operated a little shop in the back of the house—where he worked on automobile gadgets. It was here the son, then about 10, began tinkering, too, and following in his father's footsteps. As he grew up, he developed many ideas his father had started—and one turned out to be the two and a half million dollar success.

He now wanted his father to have a rightful share for an idea implanted in a small boy's mind 30 years before. All that was known about the father was that he was in the army during World War I. Army records gave an address in Detroit—for the year 1916. Older residents in the neighborhood told of a woman by the same name once had lived there but had moved to Des Moines, Ia., in 1936. A check to Des Moines located the woman—as well as the missing father. She was his sister but knew nothing about his marriage or family. How he felt about the little stipend from the son he deserted—Eisenberg doesn't know.

Kindness Unappreciated

Once a pregnant girl came to his office and asked him to find the father of her illegitimate unborn baby. She was broke and desperate. Eisenberg took her home with him, housed her, fed her, paid her medical and hospital bills, and found the infant's father. He turned out to be a well-to-do married man who was glad enough to pay the girl $5,000. The girl took the money—and her baby—and vanished one night from the Eisenberg residence without even saying thanks. Since then Eisenberg has been more cautious about taking his work home with him.

Mrs. Caine Gives Program For Ashland Woman's Club

ASHLAND — More than fifty members and guests met in the library club rooms for the Ashland Woman's Club Christmas program on Tuesday afternoon. In the club correspondence read by Mrs. Charles Forman, secretary, they received a thank you from the United Fund committee for helping in meeting their goal.

The Art committee, with Mrs Arnold Meyer as chairman, sponsored the afternoon's program. Under the title "Color Sketches With Melody and Verse" Mrs. L. Vernon Caine of Jacksonville, did seasonal sketches in chalk, and they were very pretty.

Music was furnished by Miss Mary Ann White of Virginia, and Mrs. J. H. Douglas was accompanist. The program in brief included for the pictured Autumn scene, a solo "Autumn Leaves" with bits of "Indian Summer," "Harvest Moon," as background music and Mrs. Caine reading "When the Frost Is On the Pumpkin." A western scene depicting a cowboy and his horse with suggested South Dakota badlands as background, was accompanied by "Home On the Range" and other western melodies and Mrs. Caine reading "A Cowboy's Prayer." For the final two scenes, typical of winter and Christmas, Mrs. Caine was accompanied by Miss White in "Winter Wonderland," in which all participated and other winter songs, with Mrs. Caine reading a part of "Snowbound" and concluded with the Nativity theme and a lovely sketch of "Mother and Babe." For this Miss White sang Christmas lullabys and Mrs. Caine read the words of familiar carols.

A social hour followed, with Mrs. Vernon Edwards and her committee in charge of the refreshments: Mrs. Armour Adkins, Mrs. Francis Newell, Mrs. Floyd Nordsiek, Mrs. George Hibbs, Mrs. Ed Nollsch and Mrs. H. J. Lohman, with Mrs. Rose Jokisch and Mrs. Hannah Fields presiding at the table

Watch Out For The Zero Point

Physical-Emotional-Mental Line Graph Follows Your Entire Life

By WARD CANNEL
Written For NEA

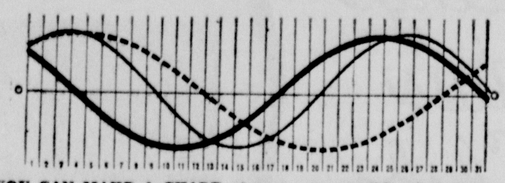
NEW YORK —(NEA)— What actually happened up there to U-2 pilot Francis Powers? How did actor James Dean really die? And basically, what about you—should you drive the car tomorrow, or take that airplane, or even get out of bed?

Well a fellow here with a computer and a ruler says it's all a matter of easily calculated mathematical cycles—the "biorhythm" of your life. He says that when the cycles are at a certain point, watch out.

He says he's no crackpot because figures don't lie and researchers who have checked on the life cycles of thousands of cases are right 80 per cent of the time at least.

For example, the biorhythm chart for actor James Dean shows conclusively that death came on a critical day in his cycles.

And furthermore, U-2 pilot Powers made his fateful flight on a very bad day in his cycles. So did the pilots and co-pilots of several passenger planes that crashed recently. Even 8 out of 10 deaths from normal causes occur on critical biorhythm days according to computation.



YOU CAN MAKE A CHART of your own monthly biorhythmic cycles like this typical graph. Merely make a chart of straight lines (one for each day in your life) and draw a zero line through them. Each cycle starts upward from zero on the day of birth, falls back through zero half-way through complete span, and finally climbs back through zero to end on cycle and begin next. Complete physical cycle (thick line) takes 23 days, emotional (thin line) 28 days, intellectual (dotted line) 33 days. Danger points: when cycles cross zero line.

• • •

The man with the charts and computers is one George Thommen who learned the science of biorhythm during many trips to Europe where it has been practiced in one form or another for generations. It is ridiculously simple, like most gigantic ideas; it works like this:

On the day of birth, we begin three important cycles which we follow all the rest of our lives.

There is the physical cycle (endurance, energy, confidence, etc.) which takes 23 days. There is the 28-day sensibility cycle (nerves, feelings, intuition, creativity, etc.) And there is the 33-day intelligence cycle (memory, logic, ambition, etc.).

Each cycle begins at zero, climbs to its peak, falls to zero and on downward to its full depth, climbs upward to zero and then begins again.

"Each time the cycle crosses zero," Thommen explains, "it is at its critical point. Zero is like a light switch turning a bulb off or on. When two of the three cycles are critical, be very careful.

"This is where natural death occurs, or propensity to accident or the chance of hasty decisions."

THOMMEN: Biorhythmer.

Now, until quite recently Thommen was an importer by trade and a life cyclist by hobby. But when he began to apply the tools of biorhythm to people in the news, he saw at once what a secret had unlocked.

"I knew immediately," he says, "that Ingemar Johansson would have to lose the heavyweight championship to Floyd Patterson as soon as the date of the rematch was announced. Calculations showed that biorhythmically Ingo was either critical or low."

By and by, Thommen sold out his important business and has now put his assets and acumen to the (oh dear) cycle wheel. The score so far: one thousand charts made and delivered and several hundred computers sold with demand far exceeding the supply.

At an average of $35 per computer—a three-way, circular slide rule—Thommen may have a good thing going. And if he can just convince the air lines, football coaches, doctors or marriage counselors that they need master computers for assigning pilots or players, helping patients or clients—why there's no telling how life in the U.S. will be changed.

This reporter, for example, faced with double-critical cycles by Thommen's computations, has already asked for next Friday off.

MARCH OF SCIENCE LEAVES NOSE BEHIND

Human Sense of Smell Too Variable for Wine and Perfume Industries

By WARD CANNEL
Written For NEA

DAVIS, Calif.—(NEA)—And now it's farewell to the nose.

After 70 years of trying, modern science has finally made the trusty old schnozzola obsolete. In its place stands an efficient, stainless, immune little instrument that joins hi-fi, infra-red and radar in beating grubby old mankind senseless.

It's not that the nose is bad. It's just that science—and more important, industry—cannot count on human sense of smell.

According to Dr. Dinsmoor Webb, professor of enology (winemaking) at the University of California in Davis:

• • •

"The old expert perfume maker who uses his nose is all right. But you just can't count on his mixing up a batch just like that last batch if he's going to do it by nose."

Producers of mass-marketed perfumes, wines and essential oil compounds used in industry tell Dr. Webb that a difference in smell from one purchase to the next can mean big differences in profits.

California wine makers were faced with an unusual problem. As one of them put it:

"We've finally got our wine blends to taste like what people want. It's been a long fight to get that much wine acceptance in America. We can't afford even the slightest variation in taste from one vintage to the next or we'll lose what we've gained."

• • •

So, there's the pressing need. But, alas, the human nose just doesn't answer the call. Nose researchers have discovered:

● Noise can profoundly determine what you smell. A conversation, a rattle, a whisper can throw even the most educated nose out of joint.

● Sight affects smelling. Three samples against a red background will smell different from the same three against a blue or white background.

● Your emotions can play havoc with what you smell. The sense of smell can evoke memories and recall old images far more clearly than any other sense. The image will make a difference in what you choose by nose.

• • •

To get away from these variables takes years of training. Dr. Maynard Amerine, chairman of the enology department, has been tasting about 20 samples of wine each day for 20 years and reports that he has to keep up in his studies or his sharpness will be affected.

Luckily, however, research has turned out a completely mechanical nose called the Gas Chromatograph.

It looks like a 10-foot tube. But inside is an inert sandy material, each grain covered with a magic potion. A minute amount of the sample for smelling is injected into one end of the tube. A stream of inert gas follows it. Within seconds the sample is separated into its volatile (smell-like) parts.

At the far end of the tube a filament picks up the effect and activates a pen on a graph.

Ripe pear smell looks as different from unripe pear smell as shaving cream from whipped cream.

"It works," Dr. Webb said, "It will work better as we perfect it. And researchers in one part of the world will be able to name an odor as accurately as researchers elsewhere. In making up blends, it means that every batch will taste exactly like any other you want. It's merely a matter of reading the graphs.

"But it does seem a shame to do away with the different tastes, smells, variations—personalities — of nature."

WINE TASTERS in booths at the University of California may be put out of business by a new scientific device.

Why Jeff Hunter Was Chosen To Play Role Of Christus In 'The King Of Kings'

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

MADRID, Spain (AP)—It was a balmy 3 a.m. on an outdoor set at the Estudios Chamartin. The lights, the cameras and other trappings were like a Hollywood set.

But the mood was different—more churchlike than studio.

Director Nicholas Ray beckoned me to the camera.

"Look at Jeff's eyes through this finder," he said.

I did—and saw why Jeff Hunter was chosen to play the Christus in this first film biography of "The King of Kings" since the silent era. The scene was the all-important Last Supper—one that took all night to shoot.

Hunter, more so than any actor I can think of, fits the conception of the Christ of medieval painters. At 33, he is the same age as the crucified Christ.

Hunter's eyes are a soft blue. His face is kind but manly. His manner, onstage and off, is gentle. He is 6 feet 1, weighs 180 pounds.

Ray and producer Samuel Bronston had more than physical characteristics to consider in filling the role of Christ.

"We not only had to get an actor who would look the part," says Bronston, "but one who would approach it with the reverence it deserves.

"Jeff has exceeded all our expectations."

Hunter and his wife live quietly in a Madrid suburb. He shuns public appearances.

TV star Jack Paar visited Madrid at the same time I did. Bronston gave a dinner party in his home for Paar and invited members of the cast. Hunter refused.

He explains: "It is impossible for me to regard this remarkable opportunity as a part for which I, as an actor can prepare. I can only approach this with two guideposts—absolute humility and a willingness to accept the emotional and spiritual leadership of my director and the religious advisors of this film upon whose wisdom we are all relying.

"Mr. Bronston agreed that it would be impossible for me to discuss with authority my feelings about playing Christ, so during the time I am dedicated to this role, I must keep my activities off the set anonymous."

Christ has been portrayed only fleetingly on the screen since H. B. Warner's memorable role in the silent movie. There is a legend around Hollywood that Warner was so typed as Christ that he couldn't get anything but bit parts after that.

Hunter is aware of the legend but believes times have changed.

"The public," Hunter says, "knows that I am only an actor playing the greatest role in history."

Concord Women Hear Of Art School At Allerton Park

The regular meeting of the Concord Community Woman's Club was held Tuesday evening, Dec. 13, at the home of Mrs. Donald Hatfield. The meeting opened with the group joining together in the singing of Silent Night. For the December devotions, Mrs. Eugene Brockhouse, chose the scriptures from Luke, the Christmas Story.

The secretary and treasurer's reports were given and approved. The secretary also read a card received from Mrs. May Clayton, thanking the club for their contributions to the chair fund for the Tuberculosis Sanatorium.

After hearing the report from the committee selected to bring ideas on the usage of the club coffee pot, a motion was made and seconded that the club loan out the coffee pot and trays; the borrowers are to be responsible for damage or loss.

Local projects were discussed and Mrs. Clifford Fouts made the motion that the club have a picnic table built for the recreation club. A short discussion was held on Christmas fruit baskets and Mrs. Robert Nickel and Mrs. Richard Morris volunteered to take charge of the plan.

The group heard that correspondence had been received from Mrs. Ray McKinley, campaign director for the March of Dimes asking the club to again take part in the campaign. After a brief discussion it was decided that the club would again participate in the March of Dimes.

Mrs. Nickel introduced the speaker for the evening, Mrs. Wilfrid Rice of Jacksonville, state art chairman. Mrs. Rice showed colored slides of the Robert Allerton Park located near Monticello, Ill. The park is one of the most beautiful estates in the middle west and has been made the location for the Federation Art School. Here art students are allowed to take advantage of the beautiful architecture sculpture and landscaping of Allerton Park. Mrs. Rice showed an exhibit of work done by scholarship students while at Federation Art School.

After the most interesting program on Art, the meeting was adjourned. Mrs. Clifford Fouts, social chairman, led the recreation. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Donald Hatfield and Mrs. Richard Morris.

Thirteen members were present for the answering of roll call, "My Favorite Dessert" and the club was honored with the presence of one guest, Mrs. Marie Burrus, Morgan County President. The next meeting will be held Jan. 9 at the home of Mrs. Robert Nickel.

Police Chief Has Good Advice For Christmas

Persons "carried away" by the holiday spirit may be carried away from a traffic accident for which they were totally unprepared, warns Chief of Police Charles P. Runkel, after noting the daily increase in local traffic as the result of Christmas shopping activity.

"I don't mean to sound grumpy," Chief Runkel explained. "Actually, it's a cherry sight to see all these people busy shopping to make Christmas a happy occasion for their families and friends. We welcome the shoppers to our shopping districts, and so far, I must say they have been a well behaved group."

The chief warned, however, that as the shopping period grows short, and the pace more hectic, some drivers and pedestrians could grow impatient in traffic—and that could lead to trouble.

"Is the average Christmas shopper prepared for an accident?" the chief asked. "Of course not. He is unprepared psychologically, because having an accident is the farthest thing from his mind. Who wants to think about accidents at Christmas time?

"In the second place, he is unprepared financially. At this time of the year there are expenses enough without the added overwhelming expense of having an accident."

Yet the very element of unpreparedness is what invites most accidents, the chief pointed out, particularly when drivers and pedestrians are unprepared to face the cold facts that accidents do happen, and could happen to them.

"In the interest of finding the Merry Christmas we are shopping for, I'm asking all our citizens to think seriously about holiday season safety rules," Chief Runkel said, and listed them as follows:

Postpone shopping trips when bad weather prevails, especially if the family car is not fully equipped for snow, sleet or ice driving—from the properly aimed headlights and strong windshield wipers in front to the tire chains in the trunk, or on the rear wheels when needed.

Drive with special alertness in heavy traffic, being very careful for bundle-laden pedestrians.

Start early, giving yourself plenty of time to shop calmly and without undue, frantic haste.

Do your window shopping from the sidewalk, not from behind the steering wheel of a moving car.

Stay sober behind the wheel—whether shopping or celebrating.

Don't double-park, or block busy intersections.

CHICAGO (AP) — The heavy snowstorm early last week in the East had a bearish effect on butcher hog prices, and they were steady to 25 cents lower despite a decline in receipts.

Byers said the snowfall which stalled traffic for hours curtailed slaughter operations and slowed demand for hog supplies. A weaker market for dressed pork at Chicago also had an effect in the pens. Pork loins were quoted as much as $4 a hundredweight lower.

Slaughter steer prices reacted somewhat to the Eastern snowstorm, but also because of an increased supply. With the demand narrowed, some weights and grades sold as much as $1.50 a hundredweight lower. The setback cut the average price of slaughter steers to its lowest level in a month.

A sharp setback in prices of dressed lamb weakened the sheep market, where slaughter lambs sold 50 cents to $1 lower. Buyers said prices for dressed lamb slipped to their lowest level since 1946.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market this week churned its way through depressing economic news and a heavy snowstorm to post its second straight weekly advance.

Tax-loss selling and switching led to confused, trendless conditions most of the time but enough selective demand existed for blue chips to give the list as a whole a pretty good gain.

The heavy storm early in the week piled up so much snow that the New York Stock Exchange was delayed one hour in opening, its first such delay in 26 years. Trading on the American Stock Exchange was delayed two hours. The tie-up in transportation and communication did not prevent stocks from rising moderately on Monday. For most of the remaining part of the week they wallowed in confusing irregularity.

Not until the final hour on Friday did the list come to life decisively. Blue chips, led by high quality chemicals and followed by steels, paced a rally which resulted in the best one-day advance in more than a month. This single hour of trading was responsible for most of the week's net gain.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 6.88 to 617.78.

The Associated Press 60-stock average advanced 2.80 to 219.60.

Volume was 17.85 million shares compared with 18.31 million the previous week.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Technicolor, up ⅝ at 11⅛ on 154,600 shares.

Bond prices held tight or edged upward this week, keeping alive financial district talk of a year-end rally.

The over-[illegible]gress was slight but that did not seem to hamper the optimists. U.S. government bonds improved up to ⅝ of a point compared with the previous week's gains of ¾ to 1¾ — the best in over four months.

Based on the AP averages only top grade investment quality issues finished higher among corporates. Other sections were unchanged to posted a minimum decline.

Corporate volume on the New York Exchange topped $7 million par value Wednesday, the fifth best of the year. Despite an abbreviated and extremely slow session Monday because of the blizzard, weekly volume was $29 million, close to the previous week's $30.96 million which was the third busiest of the year. Daily average slipped to $5.8 million from $6.19 million.

GRAINS SHOW MORE LOSSES THAN GAINS

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market showed more losses than gains this week, but setbacks generally were small while advances ran to well over a cent in spots.

Selling pressure became heavy at times as traders gleaned profits from last week's broad jump, but it was rather sporadic and recovery drives frequently canceled out losses.

The solid commercial demand of the previous week slackened somewhat, although export buyers continued active and forced shorts to take cover from time to time. December wheat again climbed to a season high but held at that level only briefly against a flurry of selling.

Considerable interest all week attached to reports that soft red wheat was moving out of Chicago commercial positions rather freely. Since that variety of grain is not in burdensome supply and often is specified in overseas orders, many dealers showed a strong willingness to accept deliveries of it on December contracts for which trading expires Tuesday.

A moderate pickup in corn exports steadied prices of that grain most of the time. Brokers noted, too, that the government continued to accept subsidy bids on large amounts of corn for shipment overseas.

Every day for the past two weeks or so, government bid acceptances have covered a million bushels or more of corn. Some days the total exceeded 2 million, and on one day it was more than 10 million. Total clearances for the period—are more than 20 million, nearly all of it to be shipped by the end of April.

Brokers also appeared to have been influenced somewhat by the conclusion of a University of Illinois agricultural economist that corn usage this crop year may be very close to the record high of 4.1 billion bushels last year. The opinion was that heavier feeding of cattle may offset almost entirely the decrease in hog and poultry feeding.

Soybean traders displayed a good deal of caution in extending commitments in that commodity, in view of the government's impending final crop report of the year. Released after the close of trading Friday, it showed a small reduction from the November estimate of 560 million bushels.

At the close of the week, wheat was ½-1⅜ cents a bushel lower than a week ago, December $2.05⅞; corn ⅝ lower to ½ higher, December $1.03⅞-04; oats ⅞-1½ higher, December 60⅞-61; rye unchanged to 1⅛ lower, December $1.08⅞ asked; soybeans ¼ lower to 1⅞ higher, January $2.18⅜-½.

Offers $500,000 To Aid Schools In New Orleans

NEW YORK (AP)—A St. Louis heiress Saturday offered $500,000 to help the newly integrated schools of New Orleans stay open in the face of a financial crisis imposed by the Louisiana State Legislature.

"I hope that by making this offer I will encourage others who have been silent to fight to keep the schools open," said Ellen Steinberg. "The New Orleans school system is in the same position as a drowning person. Only direct action can save it."

Miss Steinberg is the daughter of Mark C. Steinberg, millionaire St. Louis investment broker and philanthropist who died in 1951. She said her attorney, Joseph Wishod of New York, will handle negotiations with the New Orleans School Board if it accepts her offer.

The board has been stripped of its operating funds and its power to borrow money by the legislature in an attempt to block integration. The board faces $3 million in salaries and bills.

Miss Steinberg said she would ask the board to pay her back—if possible—if it accepts the money. But she said she is prepared to forego repayment if necessary. She added that she also is ready to make similar offers to other school systems threatened with closing as the result of integration.

Miss Steinberg said she was "deeply distressed over the poor image of our country being created abroad" by Southern racial problems.

"People should back their beliefs with direct action," she said.

Seek Cause Of Collision, Death Toll Reaches 136

reduce the overall toll to 135.

As they did, new grief struck. Of the 128 aboard the two doomed planes, one passenger, Stephen Baltz, 11, Wilmette, Ill., had clung to life for more than 24 hours.

But he died Saturday, of burns and inhaled flames. And Friday's thanksgiving of his parents, who had stood watch at his hospital bedside, turned to tears.

The over-all toll of death thus rose to 136 from the collision that rained fiery destruction on the city. All aboard both planes perished, along with eight others on the ground.

Police said still more bodies may lie in the wreckage and torn buildings.

As the broad, rapid-fire inquiry proceeded, these inklings of what happened were indicated:

One plane was being watched on radar. The other apparently was not. One must have been off course.

Both planes, a United Air Lines DC8 jet and a Trans World Airlines four-engine Constellation, were descending for a landing when their paths inextricably crossed.

A top federal aviation official said that under such circumstances, "if both planes were under positive control at the time one was off course."

Phillip Goldstein, chief of the investigating division of the Civil Aeronautics Board, also said the TWA plane was being traced at the time on radar scopes at LaGuardia Field, its destination.

As for the jet, headed for Idlewild Airport 10 miles away, he said: "I don't believe that the United Air Lines plane had been identified as such on the scope."

The hard-pressed CAB investigation was described as the most extensive ever undertaken by the agency.

It brought a vast corps of experts here, many of them working through the night examining radio communications records, plane remnants, charred equipment, flight patterns and other material in a search for the cause.

"So far there is no definite lead," Goldstein said.

At the same time, nearly 300 police and firemen still dug through the ruins in a crowded Brooklyn neighborhood where the huge jet plane fell, gouging walls, shearing roofs, and setting a dozen structures afire.

Report Hodge To Ask Governor For Clemency

CHESTER, Ill. (AP) — Former State Auditor Orville E. Hodge, in prison for the theft of $1,500,000 in state funds, will petition the governor for executive clemency next Tuesday, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said Saturday night.

Hodge is serving a 12-to-15 year sentence in Menard Penitentiary and won't be eligible for parole until November 1963. He started the term on Aug. 20, 1956.

Randall Robertson — a Granite City attorney and good friend of Hodge—told the newspaper he had prepared the petition for Hodge and would represent him before the parole board.

Robertson said under normal proceeding such a petition would be heard and considered by the parole board, which in turn would make recommendations to the governor.

The Post-Dispatch quoted Robertson as saying it is within the governor's power to lift a case of this kind out of the normal channels and act on it by granting a pardon or reducing sentence.

The petition will be filed Tuesday but the parole board doesn't meet until Jan. 10, the day after Governor-elect Otto Kerner takes office. Action on the petition thus will be taken by the new governor, unless Gov. William G. Stratton acts on it before leaving office.

The final report of the state's trustee showed that the state received all of the amounts due it from Hodge.

The petition points out that Hodge pleaded guilty and his behavior in prison and his contributions to prison society have been outstanding. It adds that his son and sister, both of Granite City, have offered him a home and a job in his sister's hardware store.

Hodge operates the prison's radio center which sends programs into the cells. He is assistant to the Lutheran chaplain, the Rev. Henry F. Gerecke, and teaches therapy in the psychiatric division. Chaplain Gerecke described Hodge as a "penitent, believing, saved sinner and a humble man."

TRAINS COLLIDE IN ITALY, FOUR KILLED

BRESCIA, Italy (AP) — An express train loaded with immigrant workers returning home for Christmas collided with a sleek new luxury train near this north Italian town Saturday. Four persons were killed and 43 injured, 12 of them critically.

The express traveling from Milan to Trieste, was going 55 miles an hour when it jumped its tracks into the path of the oncoming "Arlecchino" streamliner, traveling 80 m.p.h. en route to Milan from Venice.

Aboard the express were hundreds of Italian workers returning home for Christmas from jobs in Germany, France and Switzerland.

One of the injured passengers on the "Arlecchino" was Bittorio Badini Confalonieri, 46, president of the Council of Europe. He was taken to Brescia Civil Hospital in critical condition, suffering a brain concussion and a fractured left arm.

Police originally counted seven dead in the accident, but later gave the toll as four.

Airliner Veers Into Snowbank. No One Injured

BOSTON (AP)—An American Airlines 707 jet swerved into a snowbank at Logan International Airport Saturday after landing on a flight from Los Angeles. The Airport Authority said none of the 103 persons aboard was injured.

The big plane had traveled about 6,000 feet on the 10,000 foot runway and as the pilot slowed it down it veered off into the snowbank.

The passengers were taken off and driven to the terminal in buses.

The airport was closed temporarily so that the plane could be removed from the snowbank.

GIRL HUNTS SANTA, GETS STUCK IN FLUE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kathy Montanaro, a venturesome four-year-old wasn't taking any chances on missing Santa Claus.

She popped out of bed Saturday, pushed the covering from a brick heating flue no longer used, and peered down the chimney.

"I was looking for Santa Claus," she related afterward. "I think I saw the top of his hat, So I went down after him."

It took a squad of firemen half an hour to get her out.

The experience left her unperturbed but disappointed that Santa seemingly melted into the air.

Kathy was in a second floor bedroom when it all started.

Her mother, Carol, was making the bed and didn't see Kathy move the covering, a piece of plasterboard serving the purpose temporarily.

Once aware of what had happened, Mrs. Montanaro flew to the opening—15 by 18 inches — and there, nine feet below, squatted Kathy. The flue had been sealed off at the first floor level.

When firemen arrived they carefully broke away bricks above Kathy's head and lifted her through the gap they made. She was smeared with soot.

ESTRANGED WIFE KEEPS HUSBAND'S FALSE TEETH

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Clayton F. Holland testified Friday that his estranged wife wouldn't let him take his false teeth, some shirts and four shoes for the right foot from their home.

Holland appeared in court without his teeth.

Mrs. Holland, suing for divorce on grounds of general indignities, testified she kept the items because he refused to give her antifreeze for the family car.

"I might say," remarked Judge Ben Terte, "that it is a petty thing to refuse his teeth. I don't think any court will consider it any degree of propriety to refuse to give a man his teeth."

Mrs. Holland was granted $145 a month support pending outcome of the divorce suit.

U.S. Note Blames Soviet, Partners For War In Laos

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States blamed the Soviet Union "and its partners" Saturday for the fratricidal war in Laos. It condemned as illegal Soviet delivery of arms to Laotian rebel forces.

A note blaming the Soviet government and its partners for the civil war in Laos was delivered to Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov by Deputy Undersecretary of State Raymond Hare at the State Department.

The U. S. note on the situation in Laos rejected Soviet charges that the United States had taken aggressive actions to provide arms to the pro-American forces of Gen. Phoumi Hosavan. The United States replied that the Soviet charge that Lao army troops had been given arms recently was completely false. It said the Lao army had been equipped with M24 tanks and 105-millimeter howitzers prior to the outbreak of rebellion Aug. 9 and added:

"The United States has not in fact supplied any equipment of this type to Laos since 1957. The United States has never supplied 120-millimeter mortars, armed aircraft, or armed or armored vessels to Laos. The United States has not brought any arms or ammunition into Laos since the end of November. No U. S.-supplied helicopters have been used to direct artillery fire."

To these specific denials of Soviet charges in a Dec. 13 note from Moscow the American note also added that U. S. advisers in the country have not led any military actions.

"The responsibility for the present fratricidal war in Laos, about which the Soviet government claims to be concerned, rests squarely and solely upon the Soviet government and its partners.

Four Students Awarded Rhodes Scholarships

CHICAGO (AP)—Four students, one of them a varsity basketball player at Purdue University, Saturday were awarded Rhodes scholarships by a Midwest selection committee.

They will take up residence in October 1961 for two, and possibly three, year's study at Oxford University, England. The winners, their schools and fields of study:

Robert Orrill, 21-year-old senior on the Purdue basketball squad and resident of Madison, Ind., will study literature.

David Eisenberg, 21, Winnetka, Ill., a senior at Harvard, will study biochemistry.

Lt. Gaines Post Jr., 23, of Madison, Wis., won his scholarship in absentia. A graduate of Cornell University, he is stationed with the Third Missile Battalion, 79th Artillery, in Germany. His field is history.

Richard B. Stewart, 20, of Shaker Heights, Ohio, a senior at Yale University, will study history.

The winners were selected from a field of 12—two each from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Wisconsin and Michigan. The announcement was made by Prof. Martin Wagner of the University of Illinois, Urbana, secretary of the Illinois Committee for the Selection of Rhodes Scholars.

Plane's Radar Blips Seen By One Controller

NEW YORK (AP)—A qualified informant related Saturday that radar blips generated by the two planes involved in history's worst aviation disaster here Friday were seen coming together by at least one traffic controller.

Richard Witkin, aviation writer for the New York Times, wrote that there also were hints from another informant that attempts had been made to warn one or both of the planes of the possibility of a collision.

The planes—a United Air Lines pure jet DC8 and a Trans World Airlines Constellation—collided in the air, resulting in the death of at least 136 persons.

The informant explained that a blip on a radar scope shows a plane's progress horizontally over the ground. Radar showing altitude still is in the development stage.

Hence, he said, merging of two blips might or might not mean an impending collision since the two planes could be flying at different altitudes.

However, when a plane is being guided by radar operators in a landing pattern, any merging blip is dealt with as a hazard and the standard practice is to broadcast a message calling for a change of course.

Taped records of all conversations between ground stations and the two planes are being studied by the Civil Aeronautics Board to determine what attempts were made to warn the planes.

Evidence that the two blips were seen merging was said to have been turned up by a CAB investigators questioning traffic controllers on duty at the time.

SELASSIE RETURNS IN TRIUMPH

A delayed dispatch from Homer Smith, AP correspondent in Addis Ababa, described Friday's fighting as fierce. He said some of the heaviest fighting took place near the U.S. Embassy.

The Mollenhoff and Smith news dispatches were the first to emerge from Addis Ababa since commercial communications channels were shut down after Wednesday's revolt.

Lars Bringert, a Swedish correspondent in Asmara, reported the coup began Wednesday night when leading citizens in the capital were summoned to the palace on the pretext the empress was critically ill. When about 100 officials had gathered, he said, they were surrounded by soldiers of the emperor's bodyguard and by some of the "young intellectuals" who were mentioned as supporters of the rebel government in its later communiques.

Addis Ababa radio announced that the royal family is safe. This would include Crown Prince Asfa Wassan, 44, who had been named by the rebels as the new sovereign of Ethiopia. Haile Selassie, however, exonerated his son and said the rebels only made Asfa Wassan "their decoy."

The emperor, an ambitious plotter in his fight to gain power early in the century and survivor of many an attempted coup since then, called the rebels "ambitious men whose speeches seem irrational."

The politics of the rebels remained somewhat of a mystery.

Start Grim Task Of Identifying Crash Victims

NEW YORK (AP) — The living came to face the dead Saturday.

In two morgues, next of kin, friends, and business associates gathered.

Stiff-lipped, they knew they might have to gaze upon charred and crushed remains of those taken from the debris of two planes that collided over New York Friday.

At Bellevue Hospital there were the 44 dead from a Trans World Airlines Super Constellation that fell in an open field on Staten Island. Of these, two were infants.

At Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn, lay the dead from the United Air Lines DC8 jet and victims in buildings and on the streets where the liner made its death plunge.

There were 77 passengers, including an infant, and 7 crew members on the jet. In 90 morgue compartments have been assembled 81 bodies and parts and torsoes of 9 others.

"It may be a long time before we definitely know the exact number of bodies and before we are in the position to make positive identifications," said a Missing Persons Bureau officer.

But the grim task of identification goes on.

Experts take fingerprints, which are then processed by the FBI. Where this isn't possible, dental charts are used.

Sometimes a ring provides a clue, or a piece of jewelry, or some mark that is easily distinguishable. Personal papers in clothing also help.

Some who came to make identifications moved about robot-fashion.

One young mother was beyond tears. Mary Burten of Jackson Heights journeyed to a temporary morgue set up in Staten Island. She answered questions automatically, dully.

She said she had to see her husband, Arthur, 33, once again. He had gone to Columbus, Ohio, on a business trip.

But she was gently turned away and told to go to Bellevue, where all the TWA victims were transferred.

At Kings County Hospital, a distraught man forced his way past guards, determined to look for his friend—a street cleaner crushed on the streets of Brooklyn by the falling jet plane.

William B. Horsey of Topsfield, Mass., came to identify the body of his brother, James Horsey, 30, of Front Royal, Va. At one moment, he started to say something, then seemed incapable of saying a word.

Mrs. Ralph Fernandez and Miss Milagros Maldonado came to see Juanita Mullins of Dayton, Ohio, with whom they had gone through nursing school. A Christmas holiday reunion was planned, and on the plane were Mrs. Mullins, her husband, Cecil, and their 3-month-old daughter, Tracy. All were dead.

The new programs for the 1961 season were distributed to the members. The club was happy to have Mr. and Mrs. Butler as guests. The next meeting will be held Wednesday evening, Jan. 11, at the home of Mrs. Adeline Rawlings.

Rightist Regime Starts Recovery Program In Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — The victorious pro-Western government of Laos started a recovery program Saturday for this ruined capital city, freed from leftist troops after a three-day battle.

Vientiane's capture Friday broke the back of the neutralist movement in Laos, the new regime which is temporarily located in Savannakhet indicated. But the government still fears a long and tough jungle fight against the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

(A Pathet Lao broadcast Saturday night admitted defeat in the Vientiane battle but labeled it simply a decision to withdraw. A communique called for reapture of the city. The broadcast was picked up by Peiping radio and heard in Tokyo.)

The airport here is reported open to traffic again. It had been the leftists' last stronghold before they lost Vientiane. The retreating pro-Communists carried away from the field much of their Soviet-supplied artillery, which will give Pathet Lao guerrilla campaigns a boost.

A government minister at Savannakhet, accusing the Soviet Union and Red North Viet Nam of intervention, said Friday Viet Nam instructors came in with the Soviet weapons airlift last Monday and that two instructors had been captured.

(North Viet Nam renewed an old plea Saturday, calling for an international control commission to end civil disunity in Laos. Moscow radio broadcast the plea.)

Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, rightist commander who drove out the pro-Communists, left Vientiane for the provisional capital at Savannakhet after starting recovery plans here.

Vientiane's devastation means Savannakhet must serve for some time as the capital of Premier Prince Boun Oum's six-day-old government. Phoumi is deputy premier and defense minister.

More than 100,000 of the country's two million population live in Vientiane. The savage fighting between rightists and leftists killed an estimated 100 Laotians and wounded about 300—mostly civilians. About 5,000 refugees are camped outside the battered city.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The way they're carrying on about Sen. Estes Kefauver's committee investigation of boxing, a body would believe racketeers were something new in the grim business, like the wild card rule in college football or the automatic pinspotter in bowling.

Nothing of the sort. There have always been punks behind pugs. Sports writers revealed everything you are now hearing.

"The only difference today," pointed out Eddie Borden, Boswell of the beak busting business, at a boxing luncheon in the Manhattan Hotel, "is that now the alleged mobsters meddle too much.

"The days when fights were held on barges and ringside mobs controlled action through intimidation were just a little before my time," the proprietor of the highly authoritative Weekly Boxing World dated himself. "I do know it was not unusual for the referee to give one verdict, then reverse himself to save his skin."

Monkey business started way back when. In 1860, John C. Heenan had a bare knuckle battle with Tom Sayers at Farnsborough, England. After 40 rounds and two hours and 20 minutes, Sayers was on the verge of collapse, but the referee called a halt and a draw—"to save the money," as they said in those days—when the mob broke into the ring.

* * *

Bob Fitzsimmons flattened Tom Sharkey in the eighth round in San Francisco in 1902. Wyatt Eary, glorified on television, picked Sharkey up off the floor, shouted "Sharkey wins!" and fled sans a sixshooter in either hand.

From Prohibition days until Big Jim Norris took control of the sport as head of the defunct Octopus, Inc., and moved Frankie Carbo and associates into the driver's seat, "owning" a fighter was a hobby, a mark of prestige to a big-shot operator. Something akin to owning a stable of horses, pigeons or chorus girls.

"When Owney Madden, now retired in Hot Springs, Ark., was a prominent figure in New York, he was supposed to have an interest in many headliners," said Borden. "Maxie Rosenbloom, Bob Olin, K. O. Phil Kaplan, Charley Phil Rosenberg, Ace Hudkins, Leo Lomski, Andy DiVodi and many others I can't recall. Very few, if any, of their fights were ever questioned."

* * *

Madden never interfered. His greatest kick was to sit in the front row and invite his numerous friends to see his fighter in action. He seldom, if ever, shared in the earnings of the fighter. His association with the sport was sufficient.

Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, who made a fortune in the alcohol business during Prohibition, was another who was involved in boxing for vicarious thrills. He paid a high price for his hobby and a later incursion into promotion in Philadelphia broke him.

Al Capone and numerous other hoodlums had a rooting interest in the sport, but, for the most part, they kept out of its actual conduct. Even when the bullyboys indulged in chicanery it only went so far. Primo Carnera, a mob-controlled hulk, reached the heavyweight championship through a series of disgraceful exhibitions against round-heeled bums and somewhat capable fighters who were frightened into submission. But once he attained the title, he was on his own.

Which is the way it would be today if it hadn't been for the inexplicable adoration Jim Norris had for the very worst element.

TARR BROTHERS, INC. JACKSONVILLE, ILL.

It's Official-- Dick Groat 1960 Batting Champ

CINCINNATI (AP)—The National League made it official Saturday that Dick Groat of the world championship Pittsburgh Pirates won the 1960 league batting championship but with the lowest winning average since 1919.

Official averages showed Groat, with 186 hits in 573 times at bat in 138 games, finished with an average of .325. Groat, who missed a number of games near the end of the season because of an injury, nosed out Norm Larker of the Los Angeles Dodgers by two percentage points.

The last time a batting championship was won with a lower average was in 1919 when Edd Roush of the Cincinnati Reds led the league with a .319 mark.

Milwaukee's Hank Aaron, who led the league in 1959 with .355, finished in a 12th and 13th place tie this year with Eddie Kasko of the Cincinnati Reds with .292.

It was the first batting championship for Groat and the first for a Pittsburgh player since Debs Garms won in 1940 with .355.

The 1960 season also saw a sharp decline in the number of .300 hitters. Of players eligible for the batting crown with a minimum of 477 plate appearances, only five were in the .300 class. Last year there were 12.

The five were Groat at .325; Larker at .323; Willie Mays of San Francisco at .319; Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh at .314 and Ken Boyer of St. Louis at .304.

The Pirates also won the team batting championship with an average of .276. The Cincinnati Reds, who had the top team average of .274 in 1959, skidded all the way to sixth in 1960 with a mark of .250.

The Pirates also led in hits (1,493); total bases (2,201); doubles (236); runs scored (734) and runs batted in (689).

Milwaukee was the team leader in home runs with 70. San Francisco led in triples with 62.

Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs led the home run hitters with 41 while Aaron was tops in runs batted in (126) and total bases (334). Mays led in hits with 190.

Bill Bruton of the Braves, who since has been traded to Detroit, was tops in runs with 112 and in triples with 13. Vada Pinson of the Reds led in doubles with 37.

Foot Was Back In Football This Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The foot was back in football during the 1960 collegiate season.

The kicking specialists were more successful with their punting, extra points and field goal tries this past season than ever before.

Teams and individuals set all king of kicking records, including net yards advanced by punting and points gained by field goals.

No fewer than 38 major college games were won by three-pointers, compared to 23 in 1959 and 15 in 1958. Ten of the 17 games won or tied during the final minute of play were pulled out of the fire by field goals. Two of the winning kicks came on the last play.

Ed Dyas of Auburn led the record-smashing assault on modern placekicking records, boosting 13 field goals, nearly double the former mark of seven set by Karl Holzwarth of Wisconsin in 1959. Two others — Durward Pennington of Georgia and Tommy Wells of Georgia Tech, with eight each — also topped the old record.

NCAA modern records cover the period since 1937 in which official service bureau statistics have been kept.

Dyas, whose three-pointers defeated Kentucky, Georgia Tech, Florida and Georgia, also set records for most points scored in one season by kicking (51) and most games won by field goals (4). He booted four field goals in 1949 to give him a record total of 17 in two seasons.

Dick Fitzsimmons, a Denver U. end, won individual punting honors, averaging 44.2 yards for 25 punts. His longest was one of 67 yards.

Dyas' 51 points by kicking broke a 10-year mark of 48, set by Bob Fuller of Arizona State in 1950 and tied by Pepper Rodgers of Georgia Tech in 1952.

Bobby Walden of Georgia, the 1958 winner, finished second to Fitzsimmons with a 43.5 average on 38 punts. His best was one of 70 yards.

Wisconsin's Jim Bakken was seventh, averaging 41.9 yards for 36 punts.

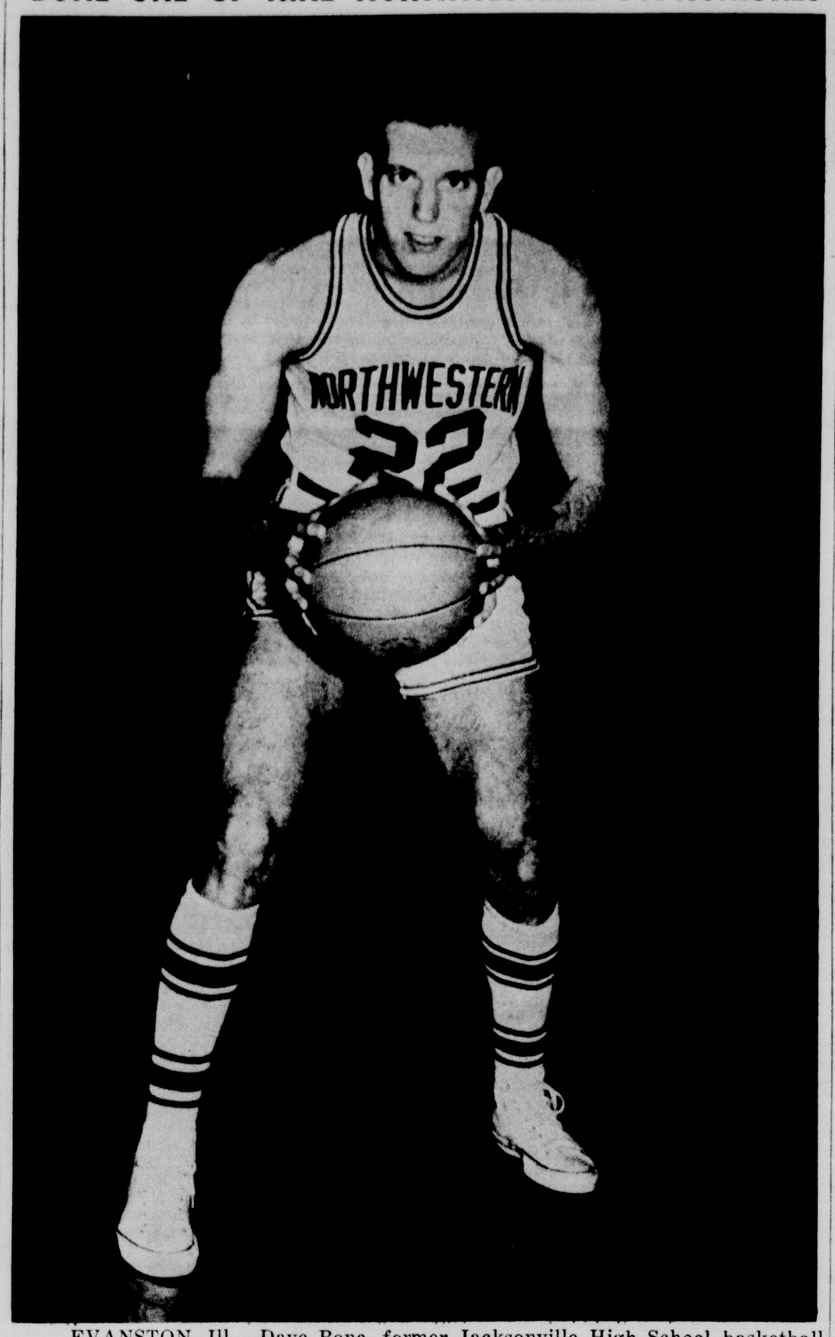
Longest punt of the season was a 77-yarder by Paul Gustafson of Montana. The busiest punter was Jerry Stovall of LSU, with 64 kicks.

Dyas' 51 points by kicking broke a 10-year mark of 48, set by Bob Fuller of Arizona State in 1950 and tied by Pepper Rodgers of Georgia Tech in 1952.

Runner-up to Dyas was Nolan Jones of Arizona State (43), who booted six field goals and 25 consecutive points after touchdown, the most without a miss in one season. Yale's Bill Booe held the old mark of 22.

Warren Spahn has won 20 or more games during 11 seasons. He turned in 21 victories for Milwaukee last season.

BONE ONE OF NINE NORTHWESTERN SOPHOMORES



EVANSTON, Ill.—Dave Bone, former Jacksonville High School basketball star, is one of nine sophomores on the Northwestern University varsity basketball team.

The strongest rebounder on the squad, Bone earned a starting assignment in the Kansas game. He ranked second behind Captain Brad Snyder in rebounds after four games.

Going into next week's two-game series against California (Dec. 19) and Washington (Dec. 20), Dave has Northwestern's leading free throw percentage, making six of seven attempts for an .857 mark.

Dave's parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Bone, will watch the Wildcats perform against California Monday night in the Chicago Stadium in a twin-bill. The second game matches Loyola against Ohio State. Tuesday's game against Washington will be played on Northwestern's home court. Dr. and Mrs. James Bunch will accompany the Bone's to Chicago.

The Wildcat performer comes home this Friday night for a short Christmas holiday. He has to be back in Evanston the 26th for a practice session in preparation for a December 28 meeting with Dartmouth.

Purdue Trims Washington, 74-46, Behind Dischinger

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Terry Dischinger of Purdue scored 24 points, 10 of them on free throws, Saturday night as the Boilermakers whipped Washington State's basketball team 74-46.

Three other Purdue starters scored in double figures.

Terry Ball, with 14 points, was the Cougars' only player who scored more than eight points.

Purdue played without regular Bobby Orrill, who won a Rhodes scholarship in Chicago Saturday. He got an ovation when he returned shortly before the end of the game.

Washington State was weakened when Charlie Sells, its strong rebounder, fouled out early in the second half.

Norm Larker of the Los Angeles Dodgers drove home 78 runs last season, one more than rookie Frank Howard.

The annual J.A.A. basketball program for fifth and sixth graders will again be sponsored by the Jacksonville YMCA. Interested players are asked to fill out the forms left at the schools as soon as possible. League play is staged in the JHS gymnasium and will commence January 7. Forms may be secured from YMCA secretary Al Dinquel.

Packers Capture 1st Title In 16 Years By Pasting Rams, 35-21

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Green Bay Packers sailed into their first National Football League division title in 16 years Saturday, winging to a 35-21 victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

Performing before a crowd of 53,445 in Memorial Coliseum, plus a nationwide television audience, the Packers' quarterback Bart Starr and right halfback Boyd Dowler connected with a spectacular 91-yard pass in the second quarter. It was the go-ahead score for the long starving Packers and the first of three explosive touchdowns by Green Bay in the second period.

The victory gave Green Bay the clear title to the Western Conference, erasing any possible playoff with the San Francisco 49ers, Detroit Lions or the defending champions Baltimore Colts.

Green Bay now goes into a playoff Dec. 26 with the Eastern Conference champions, the Philadelphia Eagles in Philadelphia.

A jubilant squad of Packers carried their coach, Vince Lombardi, halfway across the field after the final gun.

The outcome was their eighth triumph of the season against four losses, a tribute to the Lombardi regime since he took over at Green Bay in 1959.

The long-range aerial attack paid off for the Packers.

Starr completed touchdown strikes to Max McGee for 57 yards, to Dowler for the 91-yarder, and Paul Hornung completed the devastation through the airlanes with a 40-yard scoring pass to McGee.

Defensive halfback Paul Winslow blocked a Ram punt in the end zone and recovered it for another Packer touchdown. A controversial pass interference penalty against Los Angeles set up the fifth and final Green Bay score with Hornung piling over from the one.

Indiana Swimmers Claim Two Marks

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — An Indiana University 400-yard medley relay team, including two sophomores, Saturday claimed a new national collegiate and American record of 4:40.5. The time was three-tenths second under the record set a year ago by another Indiana team.

The foursome breaking the record included Frank McKinney, member of the Olympic championship 400-meter medley relay team, backstroke; sophomore Chet Jastremski, Toledo, Ohio, breaststroke; sophomore Terry Laberdie, Battle Creek, Mich., butterfly, and Pete Sintz, Birmingham, Mich., freestyle.

The Indiana varsity defeated the freshmen in their annual meet for the first time in three years 60-41.

Mike Troy, Olympic butterfly champion, swam 200 yards in 1:59.9, the sixth time he has been under 2 minutes for the stroke and distance. Nobody else ever has.

Freshman Tom Stock, Bloomington, Ill., defeated McKinney in the 200-yard backstroke in 2:03.2. He set an NCAA freshman record of 2:00.2 last week and was trying to break 2 minutes and win an automatic place in the AAU Swimming Hall of Fame.

Dave Budd, now a member of the New York Knickerbockers, scored 1,014 points in three varsity basketball seasons at Wake Forest College.

Penn State Triumphs In Liberty Bowl, 41-12

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Penn State, powered by two units of almost equal ability, wore down Oregon's thinner forces Saturday for a 41-12 victory in the second annual Liberty Bowl football game at Philadelphia Stadium.

Oregon scored first on an 88-yard first period drive, but the rest of the subfreezing afternoon the Easterners controlled the intersectional game.

Although State hurled half a dozen hard-running backs at one of the nation's top defensive teams, Dick Hoak, a 185-pound senior, was the star of the day. He scored two touchdowns and passed for another. State led 21-12 as the game entered the fourth period with the stubborn Webfoots trying desperately to get back into the game.

Hoak, who alternated at quarterback with Galen Hall, intercepted two Oregon passes in the final quarter. He followed the interceptions by racing for an 11-yard touchdown and passing 33 yards to Dick Pae for another, turning the game into a rout.

Oregon, which had a 7-2-1 regular season record, led only once, 6-0, on quarterback Dave Grosz's score from the 1 on a quarterback sneak in the first period.

Texas Rallies On Field Goal To Tie Alabama, 3-3

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Ray Poage, a 205-pound sophomore, provided the power for a 71-yard fourth quarter surge that set up a 20-yard field goal by Dan Petty and permitted the Texas Longhorns to tie Alabama 3-3 Saturday in the second annual Bluebonnet Bowl.

Petty's kick came with just 4 minutes 1 second remaining in the nationally televised game.

Until Poage cut loose with his power plays it had appeared the tough defensive battle was to have been settled by a 30-yard third quarter field goal by Tommy Brooker, a 206-pound Alabama junior.

An interference penalty at the Alabama 18 gave Texas another chance on the final play of the game but Petty's third field goal attempt of the day was wide. A third period kick also was wide after Texas had moved 58-yards to the Alabama 19.

An 18-yard punt return to the Texas 34 started the drive that led to Alabama's field goal. Brooker's kick was on the third play after Bobby Skelton passed 14 yards to Norbie Ronsont to the Longhorn 14.

Marquette's Fast Break Deals Illini 97-87 Loss

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Marquette overpowered a taller Illinois basketball team with fastbreak tactics in the second half to hand the Illini a 96-87 defeat Saturday night.

The defeat was the second in four starts for Coach Harry Combs' team and was the fourth victory in five outings for Marquette. Illinois, with superior rebounding in the first half, helped by Marquette mistakes, held a 52-47 halftime lead.

Marquette, in the first half, tied the score three times and held only one brief lead before Illinois went out in front 34-25. Two straight baskets by John Wessels gave Illinois its biggest advantage with a 41-31 lead six minutes before the half.

Marquette overtook Illinois three minutes into the second half. Illinois then tied the Warriors, 71-71, before Marquette turned on a four-minute display of fast break which netted it 17 points and an 88-76 lead. Marquette stretched it to 94-80, with less than three minutes remaining.

The Warriors were led by Don Kojis who collected 24 points. Illinois' high scorer was Wessels with 19.

MT. STERLING—Coach Sherm Hafner's Brown County High Hornets ended a five-game drought with a 64-59 triumph over Toby Smith's Pittsfield Saukees Saturday night.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Iowa's top scorer, Don Nelson, carried the load down a stretch drive that gave the Hawkeyes a 78-67 nonconference basketball decision over Wyoming Saturday night.

Nelson led the Hawks to their fourth victory of the season against one loss, pumping in 30 points on 11 of 19 field goal attempts and 8 of 11 tries from the foul line.

The Cowboys had six former Iowans on the squad, and five of them saw action, including Earl Nau, who was an Iowa reserve two seasons ago. Nau paced Wyoming with 16 points.

The Hawks led 39-30 at the half and stretcher it to 42-30 before the Cowboys caught fire. Nelson put Iowa ahead to stay at 50-48 with a layup and scored 11 more points.

Castro Attacks Catholic Church, Cuban Judges

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro again unleashed his wrath on the Roman Catholic Church Saturday with an accusation that "some priests" in Cuba encourage the murder of government officials.

He also promised to purge Cuba's judicial system, criticizing it for failing to adapt to the revolution. He thundered that he will throw out bad judges.

The bearded prime minister poured out his fury in a 3½-hour oration at a labor rally held after midnight. He ordered a big military parade held Jan. 2.

Manuel Cardinal Arteaga, infirm and semiretired at 81, was called a Judas. The aged cardinal heads the church hierarchy in Cuba, which privately has vowed not to bend before the regime.

Castro said the cardinal went to the presidential palace during the old regime of Fulgencio Batista "to exchange the kiss of Judas with the bloody dictator."

He said some priests "have reached really daring extremes in their counterrevolutionary activities: encouraging terrorism, encouraging crime, encouraging even assassination of officials of the revolutionary government, encouraging the criminal hands of blood-thirsty henchmen."

BYRNE WAS THE MAN

NEW YORK (AP) — When Casey Stengel said "in my 12 years there was only one player the Yankees traded against my wishes, but I got him back," there was much speculation.

Some writers thought it was Enos Slaughter or Ralph Terry. It could also have been Bob Cerv. All went to Kansas City and were redealt to the Yankees.

Said his pitching coach Ed Lopat: "Casey was referring to Tommy Byrne."

The touring professionals will meet the coaches of the MSM Conference in a contest that is sure to go to the Marquis Haynes outfit. J. A. MANN

The surprise party was in recognition of Mr. Mann's recent election to the office of president of the Illinois Association of School Administrators. The association designates its annual business meeting as a joint meeting with the Illinois Association of School Boards.

Active Many Years

Mr. Mann has been active in local, state, and national professional educational organizations for many years. He has served the Illinois Education Association as president, board member and chairman of the Public and Professional Relations Committee. At present he is serving as president of the Illinois Council on Educational Administration. This council is a federation of all educational administrative groups in Illinois.

At the national level, Mr. Mann has served on many National Education Association committees and as chairman of the American Association of School Administrators membership committee for Illinois. He has been treasurer of the I.A.S.A. and he has served on the Board of Directors for this association for the past three years.

For the past eight years, Mr. Mann has been superintendent of District 117. During this time he has had many community responsibilities such as president and campaign chairman of the United Fund, two terms as president of the Council of Churches, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Grace Methodist Church, member of the Methodist Conference Board of Education and vice-chairman of the Conference Committee on Christian Higher Education. Mr. Mann teaches a Sunday School class of young married couples at Grace Methodist Church, is a member of the Rotary Club, a member of the Board of Directors of the Morgan County Mental Health Association, and president of the local chapter of United World Federalists.

The local administrators gave a leather brief case to Mr. Mann as a symbol of his new office and as a token recognition of his continuous professional and community contributions.

The Christmas season at Jacksonville State Hospital opened officially Friday afternoon with a special ceremony at 4 o'clock in front of the administration building. Dr. Joseph Marcovitch, superintendent, pressed a button at 4:15 lighting the three trees in front of the main building.

Dr. Markovitch extended cordial wishes for a joyous Christmas to a large group of patients and employees present for the ceremonies and pledged that all patients eligible for a few hours or days at their homes during the holidays would be afforded the opportunity.

Rev. Darwin Clupper, hospital chaplain, gave the invocation and Msgr. Michael O. Driscoll, pastor of the Church of Our Saviour, gave the benediction.

Members of the music therapy group provided music for the occasion, with the entire group joining in Christmas carols.

A TREEFUL of CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Gifts are filling the space under the Good Will Tree at Elliott State Bank and by next week it is hoped the goal of 500 packages will be realized. Distribution to underprivileged children will have to be undertaken over a several day period to assure delivery by Christmas Eve. Names for recipients are obtained from welfare agencies and will cover the Jacksonville and Morgan County area.

Organizations, individuals and business firms generously donate to this worthy cause sponsored the past number of years at Elliott. At the top is seen Don Fiedler, co-chairman of Jacksonville Associated Merchants assisting one of the Sorrill twins, Sylvia, in writing on the outside of a package the type garment, size and if for a boy or girl. This information is necessary in making proper distribution. The name of the donor on the outside of the package is optional.

The little boy and girl at the right are children of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Freeman of Woodson, Jan and Jon, who also contributed to the Tree.

At the left are Luann (left) and her older sister, Sally Davidsmeyer, younger daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Davidsmeyer. The identically dressed little girls hold a gay Christmas wreath, adding to the festive occasion.

Gifts for the tree, or cash to buy gifts, will be received at the bank during business hours through Friday evening.

Old Stuff

As the countdown on 1960 begins, once more frantic traffic officials attempt to pound home the dangers of holiday-geared driving.

It's old stuff, a thrice times thrice-told tale, until recalled in the blinding light of realization that may well come in the microsecond before the grinding, tearing, screaming crash as car meets car on some slick highway, dappled with light from the Christmas trees.

College On A Year-Round Basis

(From The Grand Rapids, Mich. Press)

Michigan State university's decision to operate its Oakland branch on a full 12 months basis is dictated by the simple fact that on the basis of the traditional two semester plan it cannot take care of all the students who want to enroll. The University of Michigan inaugurated the three term, or trimester, plan at its Dearborn campus when it opened that new branch in September, 1959. The only other school to adopt this setup is the University of Pittsburgh.

What the trimester plan does is to make use of a university's full facilities and resources on a year-round basis. By doing so it makes it possible to serve up to 50 per cent more students without having to increase capital investment notably.

For the student, it means earning a bachelor's degree in two years, eight months, instead of four years. And it also makes it possible to earn a master's degree in less than four years. Since the need for persons with graduate training is increasing more rapidly than is the number of persons with graduate degrees, this system could be a real boon to the nation if generally adopted.

Drawing Closer

No Iron Curtain here, merely the thinnest paper one of bills of lading, customs declarations, etc.

Goals For Americans

The Communist Trade Threat

One of a series of easy-to-read condensations from chapters written by eminent American authorities for book publication by Prentice-Hall with the Report from President Eisenhower's Commission on National Goals. Edited by Ray Cromley for Newspaper Enterprise Assn. (Copyright 1960, the American Assembly.)

• • •

By JOHN J. McCLOY
Chairman, Board of Directors The Chase Manhattan National Bank

Economic relations with the Communist bloc promise to pose problems for the United States no less puzzling and difficult than those with the lesser-developed nations.

Not infrequently trade is employed by the Communists as a political weapon—a fact brought home dramatically to the United States by the current experience in Cuba.

The Communists can at no more than a moment's notice, if it suits their purpose, disrupt world markets through dumping commodities or through pre-emptive buying.

Likewise, they can attempt to tie the economies of smaller countries to their own through bilateral trade agreements— agreements which aim at a monopoly of trade in certain key commodities and may provide disguised subsidies if such action is in the Communist interest.

In addition to all of this, however, the Communists also find it advantageous to carry on a more normal trade relationship with many Free World countries— exchanging goods which they produce relatively cheap for specialized materials and products from other countries.

Consequently, two sets of problems are posed; countering the Soviet effort to achieve economic domination and political penetration of the less-developed nations and preventing Soviet trade with industrial nations from disrupting world markets.

The major answer to the threat of Soviet economic penetration lies in developing a workable structure within which the industrialized and the less-developed nations can co-operate in seeking mutual objectives.

The industrial nations can offer markets that are far larger and in the long run can trade on terms which are far more advantageous than those likely to be offered by the Soviets. Even the record to date shows that the European satellites consistently receive less than world market prices for their exports to the Soviet Union and do not receive compensating advantages on their imports.

Efforts to encourage economic development and to promote freer trade will thereby reduce the Soviet's ability to use bilateral trading devices to achieve economic dominance of smaller nations. However, this will require that the individual nations keep their markets open not only to the raw materials and foods from the lesser-developed areas but also, as industrialization proceeds, to manufactured products.

This will necessitate adjustments within industrial nations as manufactured products produced in relatively low-wage countries become competitive. This is another argument for working towards a more liberal U.S. trade policy while simultaneously developing mechanisms to facilitate the adjustments involved.

Meanwhile, a mechanism is needed which will enable the industrial nations to deal with temporary surplus situations in commodities produced by less-developed nations.

Soviet buyers moved in when Egypt had a surplus of cotton, when Iceland had its fish exports curtailed, when Burma had a rice surplus and when Uruguay and Argentina had difficulty selling wool and meat.

Such situations offer ready targets for Soviet penetration and propaganda. It may be appropriate for members of the new Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development to work out arrangements where alternatives to Soviet purchases can be provided where needed.

At the present time it is difficult to envisage anything approaching normal trading relationships between the industrial nations and the Soviet bloc. In fact, the Soviets have worked the trade rules and procedures of the Free World to their own political advantage on numerous occasions.

Experience would indicate that the Free World should move very slowly in expanding trade with the Soviet bloc with its system of state trading monopolies whose activities are dominated by political as well as economic motives.

In the circumstances, it is not in our interest, nor in that of other industrial nations, to provide a net addition to the resources available to the Communists by extending medium-term or long-term credits to them.

If, in the years ahead, the Soviets should display an earnest of good intent to trade on the basis of pure economic advantage, Free World nations should be ready to accommodate such trade.

Train for Job You Seek, Older Women Advised

BY MARIE DAERR

The real problem a woman between 45 and 55 runs into when she is job hunting is not that there are no positions available. It is likely to be that she comes without adequate training, skill or experience

This view of the job outlook of the mature woman was given by Dr. Ormsbee W. Robinson of International Business Machines Corp. at a panel marking the 40th anniversary of the Women's bureau, U.S. Labor Department. Not only industry, but labor, universities and the government were represented.

"If the person started with some experience which could be redeveloped, that would help some," Dr. Robinson said.

To get the needed training or skill, the job hunter should get some kind of counseling at the YWCA or some similar organization or school.

"Then she should look for training opportunities in the junior community colleges or other institutes for special training so that she could meet at least the general entrance requirements that are established for various positions in most large industries or business organizations."

Try the health field, was the advice given by Dr. John P. Walsh, director of the Trade and Industrial Branch in the U.S. Office of Education.

"One of the great opportunities open to the maturing person is in the areas of practical nursing and nursing aid," Dr. Walsh pointed out. "Many of those enrolled in training programs across this nation in preparation for practical nursing careers are in the mature-person category.

"This is a one-year program, a combination of work in the school and in a clinic where the person has the sense of participation right from the very beginning. This training offers the possibility of a second career, or even a first career, to the person who has given full time to raising a family."

Executive housekeeper and PBX operator are other fields of opportunity Dr. Walsh suggested. He emphasized the need for finding out specific areas in which workers are needed.

The Women's Bureau prints publications giving information on this subject. Write to Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington 25, D.C.

Lowell B. Jacobsen of National Broadcasting Co. added a word of caution for older job hunters.

"When the mature woman looks for a job, she must realize that she has to retain her appearance, her alertness. She has to have a flexible personality. She must realize also that she may possibly have to start at a lower rate than she received during her earlier period of paid employment.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—In his inaugural address on Jan. 20, 1953, the new president, Dwight D. Eisenhower, spoke of "this century of trial."

It has been more than a time of trial. It has been a century of fantastic changes and of challenges without precedent, even in Eisenhower's eight years in the White House.

No one has more reason for concern about them than President-elect John F. Kennedy, since he must face both the changes and the challenges. Just to note a few, in the first 60 years of this century:

The rise of communism in Asia and Africa, the disappearance of almost all the monarchies, the emergence of dozens of new nations from colonialism in Asia and Africa, the changing concept of war to missiles with hydrogen warheads that can be fired across oceans or from under them.

This is the world Kennedy inherits and must cope with.

The changes came in a rush in Eisenhower's prominent years.

As Allied commander in Europe in World War II he could have smashed Nazi Germany in a couple of weeks if he had had an atomic bomb. But he didn't. There wasn't any.

Yet within a few weeks after Germany gave in the United States developed enough atomic bombs—two of them—to end the war with Japan. At war's end this country was the richest and, thanks to the bombs, the most powerful.

Most of the rest of the world was broke and prostrate. Yet, by the time Eisenhower took office in 1953 America's complete dominance had started fading.

The Soviet Union by then not only had developed its own atomic bomb, ending America's monopoly on the newest kind of war, but within a few months after Eisenhower's inauguration had the hydrogen bomb, too.

Out of the ruins of war the Soviet Union leaped ahead amazingly in industry, science and influence. Western Europe, thanks to American help, came up out of poverty.

And by 1953 all over Asia and Africa new nations, determined to have a life of their own, had begun shaking off colonialism. Nothing illustrates this better than one example.

In the United Nations the African section in 1946 had only three members: Egypt, Liberia, and Ethiopia, plus the white-governed Union of South Africa. Now it holds more seats than any other area: 25. Sixteen African nations have been admitted to the United Nations in the present session alone.

So the problems facing Kennedy abroad will be vastly more complex than those confronting Eisenhower when he first took office.

For example, just to pick one: How in these next four years to induce those new African nations with all their separate and divergent problems, to line up with the West instead of with the Soviet Union.

When Eisenhower took office there was turmoil primarily in two places: the war in Korea, which the United States was fighting; the war in Indochina which the French were fighting. Both were wars against communism.

Both wars are over now. But the world is in turmoil, and in more places, even though this country isn't involved in shooting.

There is chaos in the Congo, civil war in Laos, fighting on a vicious scale between the French and Moslems in Algeria.

Right in the American backyard, in Cuba, there is a dictatorship which calls the Soviet Union a friend and the United States an enemy. There is endless turbulence in parts of Latin America, where many people have grown to hate the United States.

FINDING THE WAY

Our Precious Freedom

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Written For NEA

Can we who live in the safety of our country understand the urgency of the Estonian sailor who fled the Soviet ship "Baltika" during Khrushchev's visit to the U.N.? Can we ever fully understand the refugees who stream across the river into crowded Hong Kong? Resentment of tyranny and the yearning for freedom are academic to most of us. The refugee is the reminder of that which we had almost forgotten.

As T. S. Eliot wrote, "It is hard for those who have never known persecution and who have never known a Christian to believe these tales of Christian persecution."

Sometimes there are thoughtless people who say that this country ought to know the meaning of a bomb and we would be a better people.

The truth is that we might be a bitter people. Germany and Japan have known both tyranny and suffering, yet there was not automatic arrival at greatness or new dimensions of spirituality. Suffering doesn't necessarily produce goodness.

The other day I visited a jail. I was aware that every step of retreat was being blocked. I would need the jailer to free me.

It is one thing to have the doors shut behind you by the enormous deceit of the dictator. Then a man could dream of the former freedom and, as the Estonian sailor, plan for years until the leap into freedom was possible.

It is another thing to jail yourself. Says Dr. Karl Menninger, "In the end each man kills himself in his selected way, fast or slow, soon or late. We all feel this vaguely; there are so many occasions to witness it before our eyes."

The final tragedy for many a man is that he forgets what it was to be free. We owe a great debt to these refugees for they jog the conscience and help us to assess our freedom with new eyes.

It is difficult to imagine what it would be like to take that final leap.

We thank God that there is the memory alive which drives men to take that leap. We thank God that there is a place for them, encouraging them in the hope for freedom. And for the rest of us;

If, drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not Thee in awe . . .
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet
Lest we forget—lest we forget.

WINDING IS WINDING

MAYNARD, Mass. (AP)—It takes a lot of cranks to keep an old-fashioned town clock running.

Maynard's only town clock is high in a tower of a one-time woolen mill now owned by an industrial development organization. Patrick Murray, one of the clock's three custodians, says, "Each week, when you climb 124 steps to reach the clock, eight stories in the air, you have to sit down 10 minutes before you can do anything."

Then he says, you have to turn one crank 330 times to wind up the weight operating the striking mechanism, and another crank 90 times to wind the clock. That makes 420 cranks.

Scotch Pine Is Best Choice For Indoor Christmas Tree

By Gaynor Maddox
NEA Food And Markets Editor

Scotch pine, with unusually long needles, is about your best choice for this year's Christmas tree. The needles don't fall as fast as spruce, according to horticultural experts.

Today, most Yule trees have been grown on special plantations relatively near their markets. More and more growers call in government graders who pick symmetrical trees, young ones that are well-trimmed and not harvested so early that they dry out by the time they reach your lot.

Avoid dry trees. Feel the foliage. It should be moist. Also shop early. The longer a tree stands in the lot, the dryer it will be. Therefore, select yours and take it home as soon as possible. Cut across the stump slantwise, stand in water out of the sun in a cool (not freezing) place. Then it will be more alive when you are ready to decorate it.

High-Moisture Corn, And Some Limestone, Makes Better Steak

One year tests in Ohio show that the addition of limestone to high-moisture corn pays off when fed to steers. Gains are faster and less costly, and the steers grade a notch higher when slaughtered.

This information is contained in the Dec. 15 letter sent by Harry G. Russell, livestock extension specialist, to cooperators in the livestock management project. Copies of the letter are available to all interested persons upon application to the Extension office in the Farm Bureau building.

In the test 20 pounds of limestone was added to the wet ground ear corn as it was unloaded into the blower at the silo. This corn was compared with untreated ensiled high-moisture ground ear corn and ground dry ear corn.

Twenty-one steers were fed each kind of corn for 224 days. All lots received, in addition, 2 pounds of mixed hay, plus 1.5 pounds of soybean meal per steer daily.

The steers on the corn with limestone added gained 2.07 pounds a day, at a feed cost of $12.67 per 100 pounds gain, dressed 63.6% and graded average choice.

The steers on the untreated high moisture corn produced these comparative figures: 1.81 pounds, $14.08, 61.6%, and low choice.

Those on dry ear corn scored: 1.88 pounds, $14.96, 62.1%, low choice.

"Look Promising"

"While these are only one year's results, they do look promising," Russell says. "Adding 20 pounds of limestone per ton of high-moisture ear corn as it is put into the silo would not be expensive."

Another practice that looks good is the adding of 10 pounds of urea and 10 pounds of limestone per ton of whole plant corn silage. This lowered feeding costs about $1.30 per 100 pounds of gain. The two lots of heifers used in the test also received 8 pounds of ground ear corn, 1 pounds of soybean meal and 3 pounds of alfalfa hay per day.

Firm Footing and Shade

Russell also reported the work at the Ohio and Indiana experiment stations points out it is probably more important for fattening cattle to have good footing than to have a shed over them, especially if they have shade during hot weather. During cold weather, all cattle gained about the same, although those lodged in a barn required slightly less feed than those outside. During warm weather, those shut in the barn, and those with no shelter, gained slower than those with some shade over the feeding area. Protection from extreme heat seemed to be more important than protection from cold. Those fed on concrete gained much faster on much less feed than did cattle that waded in mud.

How Much Protein?

Another report of experiments at Illinois show fattening cattle need from 9.5 to 11.5% protein in their rations for best results. The former will produce maximum gains, but carcass quality tended to be improved slightly as protein is increased up to 11.5%, Russell said.

In an Illinois test, yearling steers weighing 750 to 800 pounds were implanted twice during the feeding period with a tranquilizer. This did not increase gains, but did lower feeding costs slightly.

An Iowa test showed feeding 75 milligrams of either aueromycin or erythromycin to calves receiving corn silage during the winter months improved gains and cut feed costs. Gains were increased by about 0.2 pound daily and feed costs were reduced about $1.25 per 100 pounds gain. This agrees with previous work done at Illinois and Purdue. Some producers also feel they have less trouble with foot rot in their cattle when they are fed antibiotics.

For Winter Fun: Try Ice Fishing Of Farm Ponds

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Farmers who have fishing ponds needn't put away their tackle when winter comes. Ice fishing is fun, says Thomas M. Stockdale, Ohio State University extension specialist in wildlife conservation.

After solid ice has formed on the pond, Stockdale suggests, pick several spots where the water ranges from 5 to 8 feet in depth. Cut holes 6 to 7 inches in diameter and fish each one for a few minutes until you find one where fish are biting.

Elaborate tackle isn't necessary. A short pole, with or without a bobber, and a hook baited with minnows or red worms make an ideal outfit.

Set the line to fish about 6 inches off the pond bottom. Bluegills bite well in winter. Bass and crappies also can be taken through the ice on ponds.

Incidentally, it isn't necessary to cut holes if you're not going to fish Many people think fish need the holes for air. But only in the rarest prolonged freezes and in greatly overpopulated ponds will cutting holes aid the fish.

St. Louis Milk Producers Get $4.76 Per Cwt.

Milk producers supplying the St. Louis market during the month of November will receive a minimum uniform price of $4.76 per hundredweight for 3.5 percent milk delivered to handlers in the 0-30 mile zone, Fred L. Shipley, market administrator, announces. This is 17 cents per hundredweight more than was received for milk delivered during October 1960, and is 23 cents more than was received by producers during November, 1959.

Average daily sales of fluid milk and fluid milk products in November decreased 0.03 percent from October, but were 3.73 percent more than November of last year.

Milk producers supplying the market during the month of November delivered 3.44 percent less milk daily than they did in October, but production during November, 1960 was 2.16 percent more than during November, 1959. Out of each 100 pounds of milk delivered by producers, 87 pounds were classified as Class I.

There were 3,105 producers supplying the market during the month of November which is 76 less than October, and 218 less than were on the market during November, 1959. Average daily production per farm amounted to 561 pounds during November which is 6 pounds less than October, but 48 pounds more than November, 1959.

Corn Loans Up At ASC Office

Nearly 200,000 bushels of the bumper Morgan County corn crop of 1960 have been placed under government loan at $1.08 a bushel, ASC Office Manager Wallace T. Hembrough said Friday.

This is a little heavier than a year ago. Cash corn has gone up a dime from its low spot, and many holders of new corn are on a "wait and see" basis.

Last year almost a half-million bushels of Morgan corn was put under government loan. If the cash price does not advance, the requests for loans are expected to increase sharply after the first of the year.

Calorie Count Lower In Today's Fine Pork Raised In This Area

Are you a calorie counter? Do you like pork?

Then maybe you'd better check your calorie book. It's pretty apt to be outdated so far as pork is concerned, and you may be depriving yourself of this excellent meat now being produced right here in the Journal Courier area.

Current information indicates that a three ounce serving of roast pork furnishes 310 calories; and the lean from this serving, 175 calories. A pork chop weighing about three and one-half ounces furnishes 260 calories.

These are lower figures than previous estimates, says Geraldine Acker, University of Illinois extension foods and nutrition specialist.

The difference in calorie count is due mainly to two facts: (1) More meat-type hogs are being raised. (2) Meat cutters regularly trim off the outer layer of fat on pork chops to within one-half inch of the lean. The less fat the cut contains, the fewer calories.

Better Every Year

The development of the meat-type hog has been jumping at an extremely rapid pace in the past six years, and particularly in the last two years, throughout the nation and particularly in west central Illinois. This year's champion barrow carcass at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago had a whopping 7.13 square inch loin eye, with only 1.20 inches of backfat. He dressed an amazing 42.9% of his live weight in the lean cuts: 47 pounds of ham, 31 pounds of loin, 18.5 pounds of picnic and 13 pounds of Boston butt.

A Healthful Food

One of pork's most outstanding contributions to good health, says Miss Acker, comes from its significant quantity of thiamine. Pork is also an important source of high-quality protein and provides a considerable amount of iron and niacin.

A three-ounce serving of cooked pork without bone provides about one-fourth of the protein and iron, almost one-half of the thiamine and two-fifths of the niacin equivalent recommended by the National Research Council in 1958 as the daily allowance for the young adult.

Necessary Vitamins

Thiamine and niacin, two of the B-complex vitamins, are two food nutrients the body cannot store. They must be eaten daily to maintain well being. Cooking and long storage decrease these vitamins. High temperatures further increase the loss. Therefore, low cooking temperatures, including roasting at 350 degrees F., are especially recommended to conserve these vitamins.

Cooked, drained pork retains, on the average, one-half to three-fourths of the thiamine originally present. A small amount of that lost will be in the drippings and can be conserved if the drippings are used for seasoning or for sauce or gravy.

Chemical Nurse Crop For Alfalfa Pays Off

CHICAGO — A chemical nurse crop for spring seedings of alfalfa makes possible a yield of two tons per acre during the first year, according to recent research.

Another advantage of a chemical nurse crop for alfalfa is that weed and companion crop competition is eliminated. Besides there being more hay during the seeding year, the quality is higher.

B. J. Gossett, University of Illinois agronomist, reported at the American Society of Agronomy meeting in Chicago on his experiments to determine the effect of weed control and seeding methods on the establishment and yield of alfalfa in the seeding year.

Gossett found that a chemical treatment of 1 pound of 4-(2,4-DB) and 2 pounds of dalapon per acre gave excellent control of grass weeds and satisfactory control of broadleaf weeds. While the treatment did cause some injury to alfalfa, the alfalfa soon outgrew it.

Eptam, a pre-emergence herbicide, also gave excellent control of grass weeds. However, eptam was not effective on broadleaf weeds when it was applied at 3 pounds per acre.

There was more damage to the alfalfa when eptam was used on bond-seeded alfalfa than when the alfalfa was broadcast. The reason probably was that the band-seeded alfalfa came into direct contact with the eptam, Gossett said.

Gossett cautioned farmers to make sure the chemicals they used have been cleared by the Federal Food and Drug Administration for use in this way.

Bandseeding Alfalfa Can Pay Off

When used along with other good seeding practices, bandseeding alfalfa can pay off in higher yields.

Late-summer seedings in four of the five years at the University of Illinois have shown this result. S. G. Carmer, agronomist, reported at the American Society of Agronomy meeting in Chicago that alfalfa yields the year following seeding were 0.2 to 0.8 ton per acre higher on band-seeded plots than on broadcast ones.

No companion crop was planted with the August seedings.

Carmer used a band of Phosphate fertilizer (0-45-0 at 100 pounds of P205 per acre) 1½ to 2 inches under the rows of alfalfa.

The phosphate encourages more vigorous early growth and helps the seedlings get firmly established to better survive the winter, possible fall drouth or low fertility.

Bandseeding alfalfa in the spring has not increased yields. Because of the extra phosphate stimulus, the oat companion crop probably competes more with the alfalfa, Carmer said.

Tests are under way to reduce companion crop competition and yet keep the good effects of bandseeding.

Dutch Cooking On Home Bureau Menu For 1961

"Pennsylvania Dutch Cooking" will be studied by Morgan-Scott Home Bureau units early next year and last Wednesday 32 leaders attended a training school on the subject at Farm Bureau hall. The instructor was Nola Gorham, University of Illinois extension foods and nutrition specialist.

She showed the leaders how to prepare three typical Pennsylvania Dutch dishes: beef pot pie, hot cabbage slaw and shoo-fly pie.

The instructor was aided by Mrs. Harold Hembrough, foods chairman of the Morgan County Home Economics Council, and Mrs. Chester A Thomason, council president.

Plan To Plant Trees In '61? Time To Order

Quite a few acres of land in this area could well be planted to trees, says Joe Graham, Morgan-Scott soil conservationist. And now is a good time to start planning for next year's plantings.

"Our farm forester, John A. Sester of Hillsboro, is available to help in all phases of management and marketing," Graham says. "Now is the right time to kill brush with dormant sprays and now is the right time to order planting stock from the state nurseries. Information is available at our office."

Trees available this year from the nurseries at Topeka and Jonesboro are: black locust, black walnut, cottonwood, Osage orange, soft maple, jack pine, ash, red gum, tulip poplar, red oak, sycamore, white oak and bald cypress at $12 per thousand.

Red cedar, red pine and white pine seedlings cost $18 per thousand, and a limited number of five-year-old red pine transplants are available at $40. Regular multiflora seedlings are priced at $15 and five-year-old, extra-large plants may he had for $30.

ACP payments for tree planting have been boosted to $22 per acre $10 an acre,

Plan School For Young Farmers

Final plans for a school for young farm families will be completed at a meeting to be held at the Farm Bureau Monday.

The school will be held on three days, Jan. 9-11. It is sponsored by the Morgan County Farm Bureau and all young farm couples, 35 years old or under, are urged to attend. Topics to be surveyed are the work of cooperatives, farm issues of the day and Farm Bureau policies.

Jack Smith, president of the Young Peoples organization, and John Chambers, Farm Bureau organization director, are arranging the program.

"We would like to have at least three young farm couples from each township in the county attend this school," they say. "Of course, every couple interested is invited."

Its a far cry from the old "hup-two."

1961 Looms As Year Of Major Decisions For U.S. Agriculture

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The year 1961 may be one of major decisions for agriculture.

It brings into power an administration committed to stronger measures to raise farm prices and income. Income is running about 25 per cent below levels many farm leaders contend farmers deserve.

Without further government action, the new year probably would be about the same as 1960. Economists say production and marketing factors probably would keep farm income at this year's level of slightly more than $11 billion. In the postwar period, it climbed to nearly $17 billion.

The experts look for continued heavy sales and disposal of crops and livestock products abroad. They also foresee continued bumper crops, assuming of course the weather is normal.

Strong Demand Seen

Consumers' incomes as a whole are expected to be somewhat higher for 1961 than for 1960, thus putting a firm foundation under the demand for food.

The new year, like its immediate predecessors, will bring additional technological advances. Farm families are expected to turn more and more to opportunities elsewhere to supplement incomes.

There is no letup in sight in the high cost of farm production. Tractors, harvesters and other farm supplies, are expected to hold strong in price. Farm wage rates continue to advance; so do taxes. These costs figure strongly in a leveling off of a long boom in land prices.

Lower Livestock Prices?

The year could bring new price troubles for the livestock segment of agriculture. The supply of cattle has been climbing to levels that already have weakened prices. A further price decline appears likely this year.

Hog production is on a new expansion cycle. Lower hog prices are expected next fall. Lower egg prices also may be in store.

The new administration is expected to ask Congress to take immediate action to offset some of the depressing agricultural factors.

During the campaign, Sen. John F. Kennedy promised, if elected, to signal an about face on the Eisenhower administration policy of getting government out of agriculture and of reducing farm price supports.

To Advocate Controls

Kennedy contended that the only way to improve conditions on the farm was to invoke rigid production controls designed to strengthen prices and in turn to put more money into farmers' pockets.

He also promised broadened programs to help the needy at home and abroad—steps designed to siphon off some of the price-depressing food surpluses.

But will Congress go along?

The fact that most Midwest farm states went against Kennedy in the election may strengthen opponents of his farm proposals.

AFBF Opposition

Fighting these programs will be the strong American Farm Bureau Federation. It favors withdrawal of government from agriculture. But helping Kennedy will be the National Farmers Union and, to a somewhat lesser extent, the National Grange.

In any event, 1961 is not expected to see many farm program changes. Enactment of the Kennedy crop control program in whole or in part probably would come too late to be put into operation during the year.

PARENTS ARE GUESTS OF WAVERLY CLUB

There were 34 present last Wednesday evening when the Waverly Hustlers Agricultural club held its annual "Family Night." A potluck supper was spread at 6:30 p.m. in the home economics room of the high school.

The program consisted of talks and demonstrations and the leader, James Crouse, Sr., distributed the various awards given to the club at the county 4-H Achievement Day exercises held in Jacksonville.

Bob Hayward, Jr., assistant farm adviser, complimented the club for its "100% completion" record set during the last club year, in which each member completed his selected project or projects. Hayward also showed two movies, "The Pueblo Boy," which depicts the life of a farm boy in the arid Southwest, and "Safety Is The No. 1 Crop."

Game To Make

Here's a little simple building project for some rainy, stormy day when you're stuck indoors with little to do. (This would make a fine gift.) It is a simple game of skill suitable for all ages.

What do you need? Well, a two foot square Piece of wood, twelve round pegs each two inches high and 1" thick, some black paint, and a small letter printing type of paint brush.

First, sand down your two foot square piece of wood nice and smooth with first medium course sandpaper and then smooth over with fine sandpaper.

Next, mark off the twelve points of a clock inside and 18" in diameter circle. The large circle should be centered inside the two foot square piece of wood.

Now, nail or glue one of the round pegs at each of the 12 hour points of the circle. When all twelve pegs are properly mounted, cover the entire surface of the completed game with a couple of coats of paint or varnish to protect it.

Finally, how do we play our game you ask? Well, round up at least a dozen rubber jar rings. Each player must have and equal dozen rings.

Now, one player at a time tries to toss all twelve rubber jar rings onto and over the pegs in numerical order around the clock. Each player is allowed to continue tossing just as long as a peg is successfully rung.

The first to ring all twelve in succession from a distance of from five to ten feet away from the board will be the winner. If you think that will be easy to do, my friend, you are in for a surprise!

Let's Go Birding—

Bluebirds Tell Of Sour Grapes

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Who hasn't heard of sour grapes? Even the fox comforted himself with the illusion of the "sour grapes" which hung just beyond his reach.

But the Bluebirds can tell another story about grapes.

It was November, time for all good Bluebirds to be in their homes in the south. High in the tops of tall leafless trees climbed and coiled and the vines of the wild grapes.

Along the vines hung the branches of somber blue tiny grapes. They wove the vines of the wild grapes. ed to be wearing a gigantic blue hat.

In the midst of this great wild vineyard sat hunched up three Bluebirds, not hunched from cold but from full craws. They had feasted on the small seedy blue grapes, not sour and not too seedy for them, but just right.

There they sat, round-shouldered and contented, warbling to themselves their liquid sweet notes of "cherwee." They were full of grapes and saturated with the warm November sun. They believed in enjoying the present.

All of a sudden they flew away, leaving behind them a picture for the birder to dream of: blue sky above, somber-blue vineyard below, and three Bluebirds, bluer than the sky, caught for a moment between the sky and the grapes, and then carrying away with them a bit of the sweetness of the grapes and a shaft of the brightness of the sky.

Who could criticize them for singing their spring warble in the winter as they left? All of this happened along a narrow road near the Mauvaisterre.

Across the field and nearer to the Mauvaisterre stood more tall trees festooned with more grape-laden vines. As we approached them, Cardinals closed in around us and at least two dozen Robins flew into the circle.

They, too, knew where the banquet table hung. Wild grapes help many birds through the early winter and are not sour to them.

Grapes are sweet to those who use them and sour to those who grumble about them. Take your choice.

WANT TO BOUNCE SIGNAL OFF MOON?

By Joseph A. Smith

Part 2: Following Moon

Likewise, the antenna must be mounted in such a manner that it will follow the path of the moon as it moves overhead across the sky. One ingenious radio ham built his antenna up, mounted it on a movable base (in the back yard), and this base was rotated throughout a semi-circle by means of an old tractor which traveled around a fixed semi-circular track.

Its speed of movement was adjusted to exactly match the motion of the moon overhead. The antenna was of the multi-section, stacked, multi-element type of Yagi.

You might imagine something that looks like several (10 or more) T.V. Yagi type T.V. antennas placed one above the other, and at least five of these stacks placed side by side. Thus, a total of at least fifty individual antennas are working together as one. Of course the metal elements are shorter than your T.V. elements.

Talking Via Moon

What does this do you ask? Well, it concentrates that amateur's radiated power to a very small beam, and at the same time greatly builds up the very weak returning signal that has bounced off the moon. Thus it is possible to at any instant to very closely measure the distance of the moon from the earth.

It is even possible to talk to another amateur via a radio beam bounced off the moon and completely around the globe, and it has been done a number of times!

What is the practical side of this you ask? No doubt you have been reading in some current papers of a possible network or grouping of satellites which will orbit the earth over 1,000 miles away from the earth in a North to South direction.

You would be able to bounce T.V., and other forms of communication signals, off of these and attain around-the-world transmission and reception through bouncing signals off these orbiting satellites.

Next week we shall speak of still one more very interesting field of amateur experimentation which is less expensive but no less interesting and challenging. That of "Whistlers", sounds that mysteriously occur in outer space that can be heard occasionally with merely a pair of headphones.

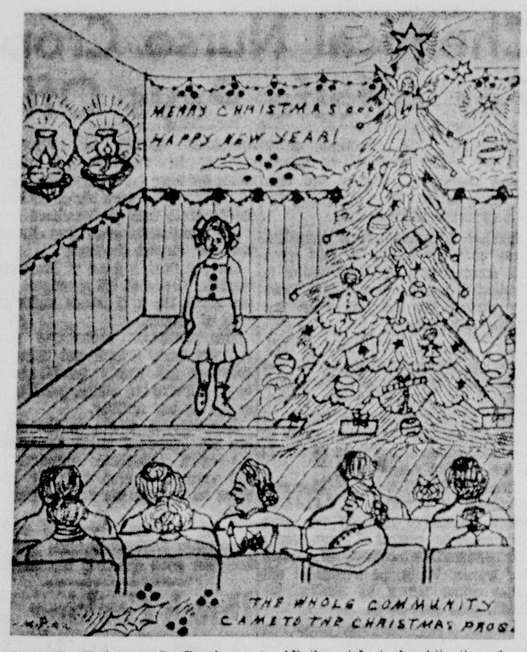
True Story—

Long-Ago School Girl

By Mary Pence Claywell



Part II: Christmas Is Coming

"Before we know it," said Hannah, "Christmas comes! Why only yesterday seems like the first day of school: my, how time does fly!"

So, with these words Hannah joyfully picked up her tin dinner pail along with the others. With books under one arm, and puffed-out paper sack in her free hand, she was soon on her way to Old Maple.

She was happy as the little snow birds that flitted across the blanket of newfallen snow which Mother Nature had so lovingly spread over the Good Earth to keep it warm. Indeed, Hannah was almost as active as the little birds for she was enjoying the healthy, happy, care-free years when the whole world seemed at her own small feet!

Pop Corn Strings

The bag contained pop corn which Hannah's dear Mother had popped the night before for the children to string at school next day.

All the girls took white thread and needles, and they sat by two's in the double seats at noon and recesses and strung pop corn for many days before Christmas. These were for the tall, well-rounded cedar which the big boys would scout around to find, just a few short days before the great event took place!

Boys didn't even consider helping string corn. Needles and thread, they thought, belonged in a "woman's world."

The girls had to be very careful to pierce the grain in the right place, else the needle would strike the husk and split the pretty, big kernels. And I must tell you that the boys didn't hesitate to take a handful of split grains, or to gladly take care of the "hard tacks" (the grains that failed to open up in the popper) if the girls would turn them over to them. Of course the girls did that, you can be sure.

Rockets And Space—

Training Astronauts

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

The seven Project Mercury Astronauts are undergoing an extensive program of training, indoctrination and education to prepare them to man the United States first manned satellite.

These seven test-pilots are: Malcolm S. Carpenter of Boulder, Colorado; Leroy G. Cooper of Carbondale Colorado; John H. Glenn of Cambridge, Ohio; Virgil I. Grissom of Mitchell, Indiana; Walter M. Schirra of Oradell, New Jersey, Alan B. Shepard Jr., of East Derry, New Hampshire; and Donald K. Slaton of Sparta, Wisconsin.

The astronauts reported to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Space Task Group for duty on April 27, 1959. The Project Mercury headquarters are at the NASA'S Space Flight Activity at Langley Field, Virginia.

The Astronaut training and education program is divided into six areas of activity: 1. Education in the basic sciences; 2. Familiarization with the conditions of space flight; 3. Training in the operation of the Mercury space capsule.

4. Participation in the capsule development program; 5. Aviation flight training and 6. interration of astronaut ground support, and launch crew operation.

The Education in the basic sciencies is an academic (college level in this case) educational program. This area includes instruction in (the behavior of things that are aimed rather than flown), trajectories (flight paths of ballistic missiles) fuels, guidances, and other aspects missile operations.

The astranauts also study basic aviation biology, space environment (conditions in space), astronomy, meterology, astropnysics, and geography. These courses include an education in the methods of making scientific observations in these fields.

The second phase of the astronaut training program is designed to familiarize the astronauts with conditions they will meet on their flight into orbit and back.

This program includes regular simulated flights in centrifuges and pressure chambers. Periodic weightless flight and training are also a part of this program. Experiments in high heat chambers, and development of means of minimizing the effects of vertigo (dizziness).

How To Keep That Gear Going

By Joseph A. Smith

Part 3: Making Replacements

If you have that general information, schematic and possibly pictorial diagrams on hand, you are ready to work over that piece of gear.

Of course, the wise person thoroughly studies all this material over before touching anything.

But Stop! Think; Don't just wade into the job in a hit or miss manner. There is a correct way and a wrong way to do anything, and this definitely is no exception to the rule.

Briefly, our job will involve replacing all coupling and by-pass capacitors, all electrolytic capacitors, checking all resistors, and replacing where needed. In making this check you must, of course, take into consideration the circuit that it is and any additional resistances either in series or parallel with it. All replacements are made one at a time.

The old part is carefully removed and the new one put back in exactly the same location. Naturally, the same value, type, etc. of part must replace the old removed one. After it has been changed, mark it off on the diagram so that you will have a record of all changes made.

Step One

The method by which you do this is a matter of personal choice, but if you have never attempted to do this before, one possible way might be like the following method: (As an example we shall use a small A.C.-D.C. receiver.)

First: Carefully remove the chassis from its cabinet, carefully clean the chassis above and underneath with a soft bristled long hair brush. Naturally all tubes should be removed carefully at first; carefully note from which socket each tube is removed thus assuring correct replacement.

Second: Remove the electrolytic filter dual-section capacitor, and replace it taking care to wire the new one in correctly. Replace any A.C. line bypass capacitors. If resistors are used as filtering component parts rather than a choke, carefully check these resistors with a good V.O.M.; if more than 20% off of original value, replace with identical new resistors.

(a.) Carefully check over the remaining parts in the received power supply, tighten any screw, nuts, bolts, etc.

(b.) When all parts are replaced and everything has been checked in the power supply, it will do no harm to carefully recheck all work done on this section before proceeding further.

(To be continued)

DENTIST HAS HOBBY

HACKENSACK, N. J. (AP)—In his office, Dr. Lewis M. Haggerty meets people who want their teeth checked. He's a dentist.

In his cellar, he meets the remains of Indian tribes. He's also an amateur archaeologist.

Perhaps amateur isn't the word, since Haggerty owns the largest collection of Indian artifacts in New Jersey. Some things he bought. Most he dug up himself. Included in the collection are more than 30,000 arrow heads.

Christmas Program

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Part 2: No Peeping!

The next evening they waited cautiously back stage while the little children sang and recited.

Once more Miss Emily warned, "Francis and Jennie, keep your eyes closed when you hear Santa coming, you must not look, for you are pretending to be asleep."

Now the curtains parted, and Lola wearing her mother's dress, led the way into the pretty room. She held a lamp in her hand, and was followed by the little girls, chirping, "Read us a story, read us a story!"

They perched on a bright quilt and opened the pages of the book lieing there. When Lola sat in the chair they quilted as she rocked and began to read a Christmas story.

At length she closed the pages to tuck them snugly in bed and taking the lamp, left them to pretend to fall asleep.

It was fun for Francis and Jennie to close their eyes as long shadows fell across the floor, and to listen in the dimly lighted room for the soft thuds of rubber boots at their doorway. A rustle of a sack pushed through told them that Santa was coming.

Creak, creak, the boards sounded, but why did he come so slowly? He had not practiced that way; neither had he practiced in a darkened room with the cap all but over his eyes, and the beard whisking even higher.

Wonder World—

Tenrec And The Loris

By Rip Barnsdall

Tenrec

The tenrec is an insect-eating mammal found on the island of Madagascar.

The tenrec is an estivating animal, that is, it sleeps through the summer. In North America, there are some mammals that hibernate—sleep through the winter, but none that estivate as the tenrec does.

The tenrec is active at night, rooting around for its insect food. When full grown it is from one to one and one-half feet in length.

Female tenrecs have large litters with fifteen to twenty young not being uncommon.

There are a number of different kinds of tenrecs. One kind has porcupine-like spines on its back. Another kind lives underground very much like the mole.

Loris

A slow creature is the loris. It lives on the island of Ceylon and in the southern part of India.

The loris is related to the monkey, but looks more like a raccoon with very large eyes.

The loris sleeps by day, hunting its food at night. Its food consists of insects, bird eggs, and fruit.

It spends most of its time climbing slowly about in trees. Very seldom does it descend to the ground.

A female loris will usually have one young at a time. The baby is carried on the mother's back for quite awhile before going out into the world on its own.

It may stay with its mother for six months or more at times.

2 Saleswomen Missing From TV Pitch Scene

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—In a shift of corporate advertising policy, the faces of two of television's best known saleswomen are missing from the nation's screens: Betty Furness and "Betty Crocker."

Actress Betty Furness recently wound up 12 years of selling refrigerators, ranges and other equipment for Westinghouse. She is almost a TV landmark, and during recent political conventions was almost as familiar a figure as the chairman of the gatherings.

"Betty Crocker" is a fictitious name created by General Mills many years ago for a voice which sold its various food products. For the past 10 years, "Betty Crocker" on television and on radio has been Adelaide Hawley, a well known broadcaster and commentator.

Although both companies have decided to dispense with their Bettys as television figures, Betty Furness continues on in a consultative capacity with Westinghouse. Adelaide Hawley will continue to be the voice of Betty Crocker, even if we never see her.

Both women, for the first time in years, are free to accept other broadcasting work — commercials or otherwise. And both are expecting to run into some problems in picking up the threads of the careers they left to become company "spokeswomen."

"It's too soon to go firmly on the record about this," said Miss Furness, "but there's no question that I'm meeting some resistance. Obviously I don't leave Westinghouse to do the same thing for somebody else—at the same time I wouldn't turn my back on all commercials. But I did feel that if I were going to be able to do anything else, I would have to make a clean break. In the past couple of years I haven't been able to clear enough time ahead to take any acting jobs."

"The reason for the resistance is that people who might hire me feel that every time the audience looks at my face it would be a plug for Westinghouse," she continued. "But I'm not worried because I know that somebody will come along who doesn't feel that way and who knows that I have proved that I can sell or who knows I can act."

Rockets Notch 5th Win In Seven Starts

Coach Bob Winstead's Routt Rockets used their speed and tight defense to throttle Roodhouse Friday night in Our Saviour's gymnasium, 70-44, for their fifth victory in seven outings. The win broke a two-game losing streak for the Rockets while the loss was the third straight in four starts for Ted Printy's Railroaders.

Routt checked the visitors to 16 points in the second half, seven in the third canto. Roodhouse couldn't solve Routt's zone and as a result it hurried its shots and connected for only three field goals, two in the third period.

The Railroaders were also guilty of an erratic passing attack and the Rockets capitalized to get many a fast break underway. The issue was never in doubt once the third frame began as Routt hit and controlled the boards with Ed Carroll sparking the rebounders.

The Rockets opened up a 20-point spread midway through the final chapter and Winstead cleared the bench after Fred Curtis' layup made the score read, 62-41.

Bucky Sullivan took Rocket scoring laurels for the second straight game with a 20-point production Fred Curtis collected 17 and turned in a good job both ways as did Ed Carroll with 15 markers.

Ron Williams was the whole show for the losers with 23 tallies.

Both ball clubs opened the game in a zone defense and the scoring was slow getting started. Lawless finally broke the ice with 6:50 showing on the clock by popping in a 20 foot jump shot to give the Rockets a 2-0 lead. The two teams traded baskets and Roodhouse took their only lead of the first half 6-5, on a 3 footer by Ron Williams. Fred Curtis then added a basket and Ed Carroll scored 6 points in a row to move Routt to a 13-6 lead, one which they maintained through the remainder of the first stanza.

The Railroaders mustered a short rally to open the second period as they pulled within 4 points of the Rockets, but Routt broke away from their deliberate style of play and began to fast break the less agile Railroaders. With 4 minutes gone in the second quarter, Buck Sullivan scored two of the 10 points which he garnered in this period, and Routt had their biggest lead of the first half, 29-17. Ted Printy's crew battled back while Routt hit a cold spell and the Railroaders cut the lead down to 5 points, 33-28 at halftime.

Sullivan led the Winstead Rockets with 12 points and Curtis chipped in with 9 as they hit 13 of 39 shots for 33%. Roodhouse shot a fine percentage with 12 of 26 for 46% but lost the ball many times on bad passes and violations. Williams was their point getter with 13 the first half.

The third quarter was disastrous for the Railroaders as they went 3:08 without a score and 4:30 without a field goal and the Rockets piled up a 10 to 15 point lead which Roodhouse could never overcome. Curtis, Carroll, and Sullivan led Routt scoring in the frame and Lawless and Cors did some fine defensive work.

Majors Complete Deals Involving 23 Players

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The new Washington club in the American League lost no time moving into baseball's trading mart as the major leagues wound up the three-week interleague trading period Friday with a total of 10 transactions involving 23 players.

Two hours before the midnight deadline of the three-week trading period, the Senators traded veteran southpaw pitcher Bobby Shantz to the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates for three minor leaguers — first baseman R. C. Stevens, third baseman Harry Bright and pitcher Benny Daniels.

Washington obtained Shantz from the New York Yankees last Wednesday in the AL draft to stock its two new clubs. The trio of minor league players were with Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League last season. All had previous trials with Pittsburgh.

Eight of the 10 deals, including the big one which sent Cleveland outfielder Harvey Kuenn to San Francisco for pitcher Johnny Antonelli and outfielder Willie Kirkland, were of the interleague variety. These included three cash sales.

The Milwaukee Braves, who finished second to the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League last season, were involved in four deals.

In an effort to strengthen their infield, the Braves obtained second baseman Frank Bolling from Detroit for four players and shortstop Roy McMillan from Cincinnati for two.

Outfielder Billy Bruton, infielder Chuck Cottier, catcher Dick Brown and pitcher Terry Fox went to the Tigers and pitchers Joey Jay and Juan Pizarro went to the Reds. Pizarro was immediately shipped by Cincinnati, along with veteran right-hander Cal McLish, to the Chicago White Sox for third baseman Gene Freese.

The Braves also purchased Billy Martin from the Reds, releasing first baseman Frank Torre to make room for the veteran second baseman. Earlier, they had purchased Brown from the White Sox.

In an even swap, the Philadelphia Phillies sent pitcher Gene Conley to the Boston Red Sox for Frank Sullivan, a right-hander.

The Dodgers sold two players, outfielder Earl Robinson to the Baltimore Orioles for a reported $50,000 and left-handed pitcher Danny McDevitt to the New York Yankees for a little over the $20,000 waiver price.

FILES FOR TITLE FIGHT

NEW YORK (AP)—Doug Jones of New York has filed a challenge with the New York State Boxing Commission to fight champion Archie Moore for the light-heavyweight title, Commission Chairman Gen. Melvin Krulewitch announced Friday.

Jones has won his last 15 bouts, including two over the highly rated Von Clay of Philadelphia.

Moore recently was stripped of his crown by the National Boxing Association for failure to defend it within the prescribed six-month limit. He remains champion in New York, which is not a member of thee NBA.

New York pitchers turned in 16 shutouts last season to pace the American League

TIME FOR VIOLENCE

By Noel M. Loomis

© Noel Loomis 1960 Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

THE STORY: Bart Wagner has admitted to Catherine Lewis that he is a former marshal forced to flee because of a shooting. He is searching for an old man who can clear him of the alleged crime.

* * *

VI

He poured a last half-cup of coffee. "By the way, that dead horse in the corral—I figured I'd drag it up the road a piece. It's beginning to smell."

"I wish you would."

The coffee was scalding hot. "And the dog? I'll throw it in the wagon." He blew on the coffee. "The buzzards will take care of the chickens if the coyotes haven't."

She showed an unexpected flash of anger. "They killed them because I liked them."

He looked at her skeptically. "How did Xenophon Jones know you liked chickens?"

She said, "I told you Ben had known him before—and when Jones first came here, looking for a hideout, he ran across my husband in Clarendon."

He looked at her speculatively. "There's more here than you've told me,' he said.

"No! She stood straight and proud. "Jones tried to make love to me, but I would not allow it. He swore he'd get even. That's all."

"And the chickens? Where do they come in?"

She rubbed the knuckles of one hand against her lips. "They are the only things I ever had of my own." She stared at the stove. "I liked the chickens because it was so lonely here. It was like friends talking—the only friends I knew in the world."

* * *

In midafternoon he saw what looked like the headquarters of a good-sized spread, and presently he came to a big archway. The LJ brand was burned into a cottonwood log across the top, and he knew he ought to drive in and let Catherine's neighbors know what had happened to Ben Lewis.

He turned in through the archway and followed the road over a mile to where it dipped into a flat meadow along the creek. Without warning he rounded a turn and came out of the mesquite and saw the LJ spread before him: a big ranch house that covered a considerable amount of sod, barns, and corrals all over. Three freight wagons stood in the yard, and all were newly painted in blue and red—army wagons.

He drove up in front, and a big-hatted man with sideburns walked out from the front of the ranch house to meet him. Bart pulled up the mules and set the brake.

The big man's eyes flicked over the brands on the mules. "Your outfit?" he asked.

Bart recognized the question as an invitation to trouble. He said easily, still holding the reins: "Not mine. Ben Lewis's—or, rather, his widow's."

The sideburned man looked at him sharply. "His widow?"

Bart said, "He was killed by outlaws two days ago."

It did not seem to astonish him. "Too bad. You helping Catherine out?"

"For a while."

Bart tied the reins around the foot-iron and climbed over the side.

"Name's Harding," said the man. "Tom Harding. I own the LJ."

"Nice spread." Bart held out his hand. "My name's Bart Wagner."

He saw a flicker of recognition in Harding's eyes as Harding shook hands.

"Come on around the back. We've got something going on back here."

Bart followed him around the ranch house and halted in astonishment. A crew of cowhands was around the front of a wagon with the tongue propped up on a doubletree so the outer end was high in the air. A rope ran through the ring at the end of the tongue, and below the ring it was tied around a man's neck. The other end of the rope was held by two husky hands about 20 feet in front of the wagon.

"I saw you coming," Harding said, "and I thought I better meet you. A man never knows but what a Ranger might come up without warning."

A man squatting near the doubletree, drawing idle designs in the dirt with a stick, said, "Haul 'im up again," and the two men on the rope dug in their boot-heels and pulled on the rope until the victim's feet left the ground, and he hung there with about a foot of air below him, and his body twisted with the rope and his face turned blue.

* * *

"All right," said the one who had given the order, and they let the fellow down. His hands were tied behind him and his feet were tied together, and he had trouble standing when they let him down, but nobody offered help. He fell over, and they let him stay there.

Bart looked around at the crew, all watching and waiting.

The one who had given the orders stalked over to them. "He hasn't said a word," he told Harding.

"Hector, this here is Bart Wagner, helping out on the Quarter Circle JB. Hector Johnson," he told Bart, "foreman of the LJ.'"

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

WHO GETS BLAME FOR NICE BIDS?

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Today's hand was sent to me by an anonymous reader who said, "Please assess the fault on this disaster hand."

As anyone can see, it was quite a disaster for North and South. North would have made his six spades and if South had opened a diamond East could have been set four tricks at his seven heart bid. But once South opened a spade East was able to spread his hand and claim the grand slam.

I am going to blame North a little for his opening two bid with only 13 high card points, but the two bid is not what caused his downfall. I am not going to criticize South at all. His partner had opened with a two bid and South had no reason to suspect the danger.

4 ♠	Pass	Pass	5 ♥
5 ♠	Pass	6 ♠	7 ♥
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♠ 3

Then, who was at fault?

I have to blame West. West heard the two-spade opening and his partner's three-heart overcall and it requires no great vision on his part to see that his partner should have a good play for seven hearts, provided a spade was opened.

West saw this, but what did he do? He simply raised to four hearts his first turn and later on simply bid the minimum number of hearts necessary until, when he finally bid seven, it looked just as if West was taking a deliberate sacrifice.

♥♦ CARD Sense ♠♣

Q—The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ 3 2 ♥ A 7 6 ♦ K J 9 7 6 5 4 ♣ 5
What do you do?

A—With a very good partner you should bid five hearts to suggest grand slam possibilities. If you do not feel like putting pressure on him simply bid six diamonds, but do not consider passing at five.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You respond one diamond to your partner's opening club and he jumps to two no-trump. You hold this same hand:
♠ 3 2 ♥ A 7 6 ♦ K J 9 7 6 5 4 ♣ 5
What do you do?

Christmas in Alaska

Santa Has to Start Work In August to Cover Alaska

MATANUSKA VALLEY, NORTH OF ANCHORAGE: Always a white Christmas.

By E. L. ATKINSON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — (NEA) — Santa Claus comes in many ways to this 49th state of ours.

He may bounce over crusty snow in an Eskimo-style dog-sled drawn by Siberian Huskies. He may harness up a team of "Blitzens," dainty reindeer pasturing on Nunivak Island in the Bering Sea, to bring Christmas cheer to remote outposts.

Or he may pick up bundles of candies, toys, clothing and surprises at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Anchorage, and fly them to villages on the Aleutian Chain via U.S. Air Force where they are dropped by parachute to children gathering for community Christmas parties.

* * *

Alaska Railroad employes give him a helping hand as early as August. They conduct a clothing drive for needy families in villages along the lower Yukon River and send the clothes on a long journey via railway and river boat to St. Mary's Mission so that they will get there in time for Christmas.

Then there's "Operation Helping Hand," an annual Christmas Airlift to Protestant missions in Alaska. Various local agencies contribute to these flights of "fancies" to Fort Yukon, Point Barrow, Nome and other distant places.

Pre-decorated trees are flown to remote government installations in those parts of Alaska which lack the abundance of spruce, fir and pine (Christmas trees) prevalent elsewhere in the state.

Another friend of Santa's, the Alaskan Air Command, delivers "Christmas mail" to personnel at silent outposts, perhaps on the North American continent's northern rim.

Santa makes sure to remember the Eskimos, too, whether they live at Mary's Igloo, Kwigillinghok or Shaktoolik.

* * *

Festivities are planned by a mission preacher or native school teacher. Eskimo hunters bag wild game, perhaps a polar bear or a seal. Served with this cooked, or if you prefer, raw meat will be tea, coffee, sugar, canned milk and perhaps fruit.

In comes Santa, usually a member of the village council, to give out stockings filled with goodies.

Just when the jolly, redcheeked man is about to give out from sheer exhaustion, he is prevailed upon to go to the Pribilof Islands where Christmas is celebrated by those of Russian Orthodox faith on Jan. 6.

Since other churches observe the holiday on Dec. 25, the merriment goes on for two weeks.

UNDERSTANDABLE—Cute Colleen Adams fights off the mechanical arms of Mobot, a robot built by Hughes in Culver City, Calf. The remote-controlled robot is intended to substitute for man in dangerous places, such as radioactive areas. It has double-jointed shoulders, elbows and wrists. Soft, padded hands provide a light touch and TV camera "eyes" transmit view of work to operator.

Fire Chief Offers Xmas Safety Rules

Fire Chief Byron Holkenbrink warns that Christmas is the time to be extra careful. Many fires result from the hazards which exist only during the holiday season and from carelessness that would not be tolerated at any other time.

The problem of blocking and locking exits and aisles is one which confronts us each year with the indoor activities in the schools, gymnasiums, and other places of public assembly.

"This practice, whenever and wherever it takes place, must be discontinued. It will not be tolerated. A terrific life loss could result from either fire or panic," Chief Holkenbrink said.

Law Sets Down Rule

Illinois Rules and Regulations for Fire Prevention and Safety, adopted July 10, 1958, clearly states the following:

"A means of exit is defined as a route of travel which may be used by occupants to leave a building. Every means of agress, including stairways, fire escapes, doors and doorways, ramps, aisles, corridors, passageways, shall at all times be maintained in a safe condition, and shall be available for immediate use. Every means of exit shall be maintained free of all obstructions. No curtains, drapes, or other obstruction shall interfere with the access to, or visibility of, a means of exit."

Every precaution should be taken at this time also with reference to Christmas trees and decorations in public buildings, and in private homes.

The chief offered the following suggestions for safety:

Ways To Promote Safety

Don't get a dry tree. When you get your tree fill the bottom of your container which holds your tree with water. Check this container daily to make sure it is full.

Use only electric lighting sets that bear the UL (underwriters Laboratories) label.

Check all cords for frayed places, and don't plug too many lights to one outlet.

Don't allow smoking close to your Christmas tree and have plenty of good ash trays around. Pick up all the Christmas wrapping as soon as possible and dispose of them.

Do not decorate metal trees with electric cords and lights.

If you do have a fire, no matter how small you think it it, get out of the house, and call the Fire Department.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This is not such a jolly season in the TV jungles. It's Christmas time and option time.

Many a show is perched on the brink, fearful of the single word that means a slide down the chute to oblivion. The hopes and fortunes of hundreds of people are involved.

Perhaps this is a good time to urge: Sponsor, stay that ax. The truth is that today's flop may be tomorrow's hit. Danny Thomas floundered for two seasons before hitting the TV bigtime. "Wagon Train" struck many a rut on its journey to top ratings.

"Five Fingers" is a good example of a TV show killed before its time. The star of the show was handsome David Hedison, and he was back in TV this week, playing a bad guy in "Hong Kong."

"It was just a year ago that I returned from a Christmas vacation to report for the 17th show," he recalled. "I was told I needn't come in because the series was canceled.

"Luciana (Paluzzi, his leading lady) was all broken up about it. I didn't really care. The show had done me a lot of good; working with performers like Viveca Lindfors, Monty Wooley and Eva Gabor was great experience. But it also was tough work."

Hedison agreed that "Five Fingers" should have been given a better chance to attract an audience. The initial reviews were not too kind, but the show was improving in quality and had some avid fans. As proof of its potential, Hedison observed that it is one of the top shows in Australia, and his fan mail from Down Under is immense.

What killed it?

"NBC owned only part of it and so wasn't as interested as in its wholly owned shows," the actor said. "We had weak sponsors, a lot of little ones so the story was iterrupted every 10 minutes. When we didn't get a rating at first, they panicked."

TRIPLE-TURBINE JET—Not since the days of the old Ford "Tin Goose" has a U.S. manufacturer brought out a three-engine airliner. But by 1963, Boeing Airplane Co.'s 727, shown in artist's drawing above, is expected to be in service. Departing from usual American custom, the sleek craft's engines are mounted on the rear of the fuselage, with the third engine part of the vertical stabilizer. Carrying from 70 to 114 passengers at speeds of 550-600 m.p.h., the 727 will provide short to medium-range service and operate out of 5,000-foot runways.

CROP Recipient Of Corn, Cash

Contributions to CROP, the Christian Rural Overseas Program, in Morgan county thus far have totaled $900 in cash and 350 bushels of corn, Dr. Richard Nesmith, county chairman, announced last week.

"Eleven Townships of the county have turned in their contributions so far. The drive is continuing in other townships of the county, and a final report will be made later," Nesmith said.

Elevators at Alexander, Chapin, Murrayville, Reese and Woodson are serving as collection points for the corn. When the drive is completed, the corn will be shipped to Decatur, where it will be processed into edible vegetable oils for distribution to needy people over seas.

Electoral College Meets Monday—Despite Criticism It Probably Won't Be Last Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — From Augusta, Maine, to Honolulu, 537 members of the exclusive, unique Electoral College meet Monday to perform a solemn and important duty: choose the next president of the United States.

This college has no campus, no course of study, no professors, no football team.

Its members are unknown to most voters, who gave them this awesome trust.

It is no longer even clear how it happened to be called a college in the first place.

Most electors are chosen by their party organizations. A few are picked in primaries. There's no salary, but the duties are incredibly light.

Every four years, in each of the state capitols, the winning electors meet and select a president whose name has been known to all of us since shortly after the election.

For years — ever since the growth of the party system — the Electoral College has been only a formality.

For years critics have been saying that it is anachronistic, antiquated, archaic.

This year criticism has come more quickly and more violently than usual.

Sen. John F. Kennedy squeezed past Vice President Richard M. Nixon by such a meager margin that a shift of comparatively few votes would show him trailing in the popular vote count, and still winning in the Elecoral College.

This has happened before in our history, and there's no reason to suppose it won't happen again.

So the cries of alarm were loud and insistent.

Editorial writers, commentators and assorted pundits have taken another serious look at the Electoral College, and, generally speaking, they don't like what they see.

Summed up, they say at best the College is undemocratic; at worst, it's dangerous and possibly a little ridiculous.

In theory, Kennedy or Nixon could have carried the nation by exactly 50 popular votes. If one of them had carried each state by a single vote, he would have scored an Electoral College shutout, 537-0.

Since this could—but probably won't—be the last get-together of this quaint contraption, let's take a look at how it was invented, and why, despite the criticisms that have rolled in for 164 years, it has survived for so long.

It's difficult for us today to comprehend how enormous was the task that faced the founding fathers, in May 1787, when they met to design a new government.

They had scores of gigantic problems, plus hundreds of piddling ones, and they had few guidelines.

Today four years seem exactly right for a presidential term. In 1787 it wasn't so simple. A seven-year term was seriously considered. Alexander Hamilton thought a president should serve for the rest of his life.

And how should he be picked?

Direct vote? Impossible. The states were so jealous that each was likely to vote for its home-grown candidate. Anyway, with the states days and even weeks away from each other, how could a Georgia voter properly size up the merits of, say, a man from Massachusetts?

Let Congress choose the president? Possible. But this would violate the theory that the executive, legislative and judicial branches should be independent of each other. If congressmen had the power to elect—and the power not to re-elect—they could control the president.

James Wilson, a Philadelphia lawyer who worked long and hard for independence, appears to have invented the Electoral College.

His idea: Let each state pick electors—one for each representative and senator. These men, who presumably would be leaders with judgment, then could meet and choose a president.

Whatever the criticsms now, it seemed like a good idea at the time.

But the Constitution had been in effect only eight years when the first proposal came to reform the Electoral College. Although more than 130 proposals for revision have poured in since, only one change has been made.

Originally, the man getting the most electoral votes was named president; the man who ran second wound up as vice president.

With the growth of parties, the Constitution was changed in 1804 so electors would vote for both a vice president and a president.

With the growth of parties, too, the elector shriveled to little more than an ornamental rubber stamp.

But if the job is meaningless, why hasn't it been abolished?

Well, no matter how loud the critics squawk, they are unable to agree on a better method to supplant it. And the Constitution is not easy to amend.

And remember, too, that it's the loser who normally is moody about these things. The winner naturally isn't embittered about the system that brought him victory.

Here are some of them—with points for and against—that you'll be hearing about:

1. Direct election of the president.

For—It's the democratic thing to do. A man who gets the most votes should get the presidency, and no Electoral College should intervene.

Against—Direct vote gives undue emphasis to the major cities. Now a candidate is forced to court all sections, and almost all factions, of this complex country. If the popular vote were all that counted, a candidate would be foolish not to concentrate almost exclusively on the big population centers.

A move to establish the popular vote for president came up in the Senate on March 27, 1956. It needed a two-thirds majority to win. It went down ignominiously, 66-17.

2. Abolish the college, but award the electoral votes to the candidates in proportion to their popular vote. In 1950 this plan had the ardent support of Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge.

For—This would make almost certain that the candidate with the greatest popular vote would wind up the winner. And it would also help develop the two-party system in one-party states. Now the winner gets all the marbles. But with the electoral vote figured to three decimal places, each party would be encouraged to scrap for every possible ballot.

Against — Democracy has worked in this country because it has naturally fallen into a two-party system. This plan would encourage splinter parties. In the past election at least 10 additional candidates were in the race. Since none was able to carry a state, this meant nothing. But it could be a different story entirely under the Lodge plan. Here even a crackpot could wind up not only with popular votes, but with full credits in the Electoral College

PLEA OF A FIRST GRADE MOTHER

by Janet Henry

Dear Teacher, you possess, I fear,
An inside line on all we do;
Our household secrets reach your ear,
Our every word is brought to you.

And so each day, as I entrust
My darling to you, I entreat:
Listen to her if you must,
But be discreet!

Proud as all get out, and justifiably so. They're handbags with the superbly defined lines, exquisite detailing, and fine craftsmanship you take for granted when you see the Garay label.

In Broadcloth—soft wool that glows with luxury: Black, Brown, Navy.

In gently per-sueded Garazelle—the fashion favorite of discriminating women: Black, Brown, Navy, Mushroom, Green.

Rites Today For R. C. Thaxton

R. C. Thaxton, 916 North West street, was pronounced dead on arrival at Passavant hospital at 12:05 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Mr. Thaxton, a plastering contractor, was found on the floor of a new house which had just been completed on North Church street Friday morning.

Death apparently was from a heart attack.

Mr. Thaxton was born in Christian County, Ill., Dec. 19, 1892, the son of George and Lucy Bloxam Thaxton. He was married to Jessie L. Davis, formerly of Roodhouse, in 1936.

Mrs. Thaxton survives as do two sisters, Mrs. Abbie Hooper and Mrs. Rachel Andrews, both of Decatur. There are numerous nieces and nephews. Three brothers preceded him in death.

He was a member of the Baptist Church.

The body is at the Williamson Funeral Home where services will be held Sunday at 1:30 p.m. The Rev. L. E. Olson will officiate. Burial will be in Fernwood Cemetery at Roodhouse.

CITY IS FRONTIER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Declaring that the "great frontier" of Christian service is right in the heart of large cities, the Rev. Dr. James H. Robinson of New York, told a Disciples of Christ convention here:

"In every one of our cities, churches are either making an insignificant impression upon the problems of sin and evil, or are seeking the first opportunity of flight to a more favorable environment."

The first professional football game was played in 1896 at Latrobe, Pa.

Gaile Dugas On Fashion—

The New Fabric For Tropical Vacations

Fashions for a winter vacation in the tropics give us a hint as to what we'll be wearing next summer. In this instance, it's a supple fabric woven of a new type of nylon. It's used for all three designs shown here. Dressmaker swimsuit (left) with pleated skirt is light as a breeze, dries in record time. Cardigan in Antron knit (center) has firm texture and hand-knit look. Print in batik effect is used for swimsuit with boy shorts in the new fabric (right).

By GAILE DUGAS
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—For those of us who cherish the rustle and beauty of silk but are a bit hard on clothes, this is a wonderful age. We can have our cake and eat it, too.

Reason for this is a new fabric development in nylon, one nearly as important as the original nylon itself. It's Antron nylon, a synthetic with the luxurious look, touch and rustle of silk and the tough, unyielding characteristics o fnylon.

Designers are using this new fabric for everything from foundation garments to stately ball gowns. Swim suits for resort waer, sweaters and children's party dresses are all blossoming in Antron.

To date, it has been developed in twills, taffetas, satins, fleeces and knits. It's used for prints of clarity and brilliancy. In print, it presents almost the same appearance on the reverse side.

It will not, of course, replace nylon. It's a first cousin of nylon or a sister, if you like. But nylon will continue as we know it now Antron is intended to give nylon a new and dazzling fashion face.

A PERSONAL LETTER

Dear Folks:

Season's Greetings to you and your family!
In extending our best wishes for happiness during Christmas and the New Year, may we take this opportunity to urge you to join with us in a "Drive for a Safe Holiday!"

We hope you will bring the following holiday safe driving tips to the attention of your family and motoring friends. If enough of us follow these suggestions we will help assure a happier and safer season for all.

BE ALERT TO HOLIDAY HAZARDS — Drive in keeping with road, weather and traffic conditions.

WATCH OUT FOR OTHERS — Make allowances for unpredictable driver and pedestrian actions. Most holiday accidents involve drinking and speed too fast for conditions.

PLAN A SAFE DRIVE — Allow plenty of time for your holiday travel. On long trips make frequent stops. Arrive relaxed.

BE SURE YOUR CAR IS SAFE — Drive with good tires, properly adjusted brakes, lights and turn signals working, windshield wipers and defrosters functioning properly.

USE COURTESY ABUNDANTLY — It Pays! "Make Courtesy Your Code of the Road" your holiday resolution.

Full enjoyment of the holiday season is something to which all of us look forward. With this enjoyment goes the individual responsibility to protect your family, yourself, and your community. Let's all DRIVE for a safe holiday.

Cordially yours,
Dick Stratman

Pike Supervisors Adopt Half-Cent County Sales Tax

PITTSFIELD — The Board of Supervisors met this week and adopted the half cent sales tax. The trial of the Sny Levee and drainage district assessment, which has been in progress 22 days at a cost of $200 a day, with a possible 50 days or more to run has the supervisors worried as to where the money is coming from.

This half cent to be collected by the county would only be collected by businessmen not in incorporated cities and villages in the county. It was hoped this would raise around $7,000 to $8,000 a year.

Gateway To Knowlege—

Parents Must Help Children Discover Value Of Reading

BY WILLIAM DEFRATES

Good books are the true gateway to knowledge. Of all the areas in which world events have compelled us to take a good second look at ourselves, none is more vital or far-reaching than the area of education or rediscovery of learning. We are moving once again, I think, to emphasis on education for the sake of knowledge which can benefit all mankind, and away from recent held beliefs that education is but a means to an end. An old truth has come back to haunt us as Robert Frost promised it would: "Never abandon a belief, merely because it on longer ceases to be true. The world is full of beliefs we keep coming back to."

In all this rediscovering, the importance of reading good books looms as a beacon that will lead us to safe waters, and all that we as teachers and parents can do to encourage, emphasize, and enthuse the reading of good books, we should do eagerly and unhesitatingly.

Two Questions

Two questions now arise from these assertions and a discussion of them seem in order. What is a good book? How do you encourage anyone to read a good book? Here, again, there are no new magic formulas, but a reassertion of past discoveries and observations should help.

A good book is one which increases knowledge, stimulates the imagination, and has withstood the tests of time. When the third criteria just mentioned holds true, we call the book a classic, and it will stand rereading from time to time; indeed, it has almost a compelling force about it and will draw you to its corner or place upon the bookshelf.

Have you read or reread a classic lately? I have shared "Huckleberry Finn" with my class at school recently, and the past week, discovered that my wife (who reads widely) had not read Thomas Hardy's "The Return of the Native," got this sombre tale and peered around the edges as she read it. Two good books which hold a great fascination for me are "Don Quixote" and "Moby Dick," the latter having waylaid me about eight times.

Current Fiction

The fiction that most people read today stimulates the imagination and does not one iota for the intellect; likewise, the non-fiction which is most popular at present is excellent for increasing knowledge but is not calculated to disturb us emotionally. A good book we have said is one which teaches and moves us.

It is possible to encourage a child to like books that will challenge his thinking? Definitely. But it is neither a rapid nor haphazard process. Get him to like books first of all. Do this by exposing the child to books when he is eighteen months old. Purchase cloth or plastic books. Let him tug at the leaves and chew on the corners if he will. You will soon notice that he wonders at the illustrations—the beauty of form and color. In a few months, get a simple inexpensive story book and read to him. If he will not listen, give it up for the time being or try a different story. But do not assume that your child does not like books on this evidence. There are very few children constantly exposed to books by adults who are enthusiastic themselves, who will not eventually come to appreciate books and enjoy reading them.

Not Too Young

A four year old child is not too young to make regular visits to the juvenile room of the public library. Here he will see hundreds of books of all sizes and colors. This is his library since your taxes provide for it. Let him handle the books and thumb through the pages. Iudulge his whims, but certainly examine the books yourself or consult the librarian before final selections to take home are made. You will want to look at the beauty and substance of the book. You will want to make sure it falls within the range of interest of your particular four-year old.

During these pre-school years, the child's interest will begin to change from the pictures to the words themselves, and he will discover that the secret of the story's meaning lies in the words. Then introduce him to the letters of the alphabet and to short words. Encourage him to memorize by using a simple picture dictionary. These are the initial steps in the development of an appetite for good books.

Schools Big Help

The school is now in a position to teach reading to your child with chance of great success. Books are familiar to him. They fill him with delight rather than fear. His own classroom has its library corner, and his teacher reads often and mentions many books which she is sure he will enjoy. But the home cannot withdraw at this point and let the school take over. It is true that reading textbooks contain good stories and school staffs provide their libraries with good books, but time devoted to reading is only a part of the school-day and the school-day but a fourth or third of the whole day. There are so many time sappers and usurpers in our society so great a temptation to eat the icing and ignore the cake—that the wise parent should continue to encourage wide and discriminating reading.

I do not need to list these time wasters. We all know what they are. Contrary to how many people feel or profess to feel on the matter, my own experience with but one of these monster robbers, television, has been that for the past two years, the children who scored highest in my class on a widely administered reading readiness test did not watch television. One child did not have a set in the home; the other said she did not care to watch it!

Additional Items

What additional things, then, can the home and school do to foster the reading of good books?

The school can constantly expand the size of its libraries, as to both the number of volumes contained and reading space provided. Our local Board of Education made this provision recently, and when the school budget was cut for other items, the budget for books remained the same. Here are some figures on the library budget that may interest you.

During the school year 1959-1960 a total of $22,500 was spent on libraries in District 117. Of this amount $15,000 was paid in salaries, the remainder was used to purchase books. This represents an amount of $1.61 spent on books per child, an amount equal to perhaps one-half book per child. Furthermore, encyclopedias are purchased from the library fund, and when a set, of these valuable reference books is replaced in certain schools in our district there is often nothing left with which to buy any other books for that year. Still, the libraries in all of our schools are growing, and there are more than 30,000 volumes to be found in the various buildings, exclusive of textbooks. A citizen's advisory committee recently suggested another room and more books be added to the library at Jacksonville High School.

School libraries can be expanded with other funds. Profits from school magazine sales can be used to buy books and a worthwhile project for P.T.A.'s is purchasing additional books for schools. At the North Jacksonville school, for instance, project money from the Community Club has been used to purchase library cards for school children who live outside the city limits and therefore cannot borrow books at the Jacksonville Public Library without first paying the necessary fee.

Teachers Encourage

Teachers can encourage the reading of good books by organizing library trips, assigning the classics for book reports, and subscribing to the book clubs which offer paper-back editions of children's books for a quarter or thirty-five cents. The same guiding hand is needed here, however, for the tendency for many children is to spend the quarter on Dennis, the Menace or The Book of Jokes and Riddles and to ignore Little Women and Treasure Island. There are many kinds of reading for many purposes, but this overdose of cake frosting without the cake is beginning to choke us off intellectually. We, as teachers and parents, must prevent it.

Build Your Own

Which brings us back to Mom and Dad and the home! Why not start now to build a library of great books in your own home? Any public library or English teacher can provide you with a list of classical literature. Don't let the term scare you. Thoreau in "Walden" defines the classics as "the noblest recorded thoughts of man."

Now is the time to start your boy or girl towards a better appreciation of good books. Books come in every price range, and appeal to all ages.

With The Girl Scouts

Activities have increased their tempo considerably this week, but Girl Scouts are taking it in their stride and concentrating on doing for others during this happy season.

Seven troops have reported to the office that they are making favors or cookies or candy and taking the gifts to nursing homes and hospitals. Six troops have indicated the time and places they will go carolling. Of course there are many more than that involved in these activities but have just not reported their plans to the Scout office.

Last Wednesday Mrs. Ralph Sullivan, president of Illinois Prairie Council, and Mrs. Robert Hartman, executive director, entertained 27 members of the board of directors and board committee members at a Christmas luncheon at Mrs. Hartman's home. Festive decorations made an attractive setting for the occasion. Each guest was presented with a Girl Scout friendship pin.

Next week there will be no formal meetings of committees or other groups in the Council but the office will be open all week.

Mimeographed copies of Christmas carols are available in the office for those troops who want them.

Recently it has been noticed that there is some misunderstanding regarding becoming Girl Scouts. A girl may join a Girl Scout troop at any time that the opportunity is offered her regardless of her previous Scouting experience. She may join her own age group at any time. For example, a new Senior troop is being organized in Jacksonville High school this month. It is not necessary that a girl joining this troop has been a Brownie or an Intermediate Scout. She may join without previous Scouting experience and begin her Scouting on the Senior level. In the same manner, any girl may join an Intermediate troop even if she has not been a Brownie Scout, providing she is in approximately the same age group as the girls in the troop.

The girls of Senior Troop No. 13 of Jacksonville High school wish to invite freshman and sophomore girls of the high school, who are interested in becoming Scouts and members of the new Senior troop being organized, to come to a get-acquainted meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 27, at 2 o'clock at the Congregational church. Refreshments of cookies and punch will be served and the film of last year's Senior Roundup—"A Mile High—A World Wide"—will be shown.

Troop News

Brownie Troop No. 60, Mrs. Paul J. Magner leader, made 300 tallies last month for the Altar and Rosary Society card party. Since there are only nine girls in the troop this was quite an achievement. Earlier in the year this group enjoyed a wiener roast at the home of one of the girls, whose mother, Mrs. R. S. Gilette, is also on the troop committee. Mrs. Lawrence Murphy assisted Mrs. Gilette and Mrs. Magner. Now the girls are busy working on gifts for their parents for Christmas.

Additional troops from those listed last week which are making favors are: Intermediate Troop No. 33 of Jefferson school, Mrs. Marian Clay, leader, who made and took favors to the women's wing of Norbury Sanatorium on Dec. 15.

Brownie Troop No. 83, led by Mrs. Russell Walton, made 50 tray favors for Passavant Hospital.

Mrs. Ralph Mudd's troop of Brownies, No. 98, met this week to make Christmas cookies to take to the Bell Nursing home on Jordan street on Friday, Dec. 16. The girls did an excellent job, were directed by Mrs. Mudd, Mrs. Robert Ward and Mrs. Fenton Foster. Then they decorated foil-wrapped coffee cans and filled them with their newly-baked creations.

Intermediate Troop No. 96 of Jefferson school (they are not Brownies as listed last week, since they have had their fly-up ceremony) made candy favors to take to the Smith Nursing home. They will also sing carols when they take their gifts to the home.

Intermediate Troop No. 4 of Our Saviour's school, Mrs. Charles Lockman, leader, are making cookies for the nurses (not patients) at Our Saviour's hospital. They will also go carolling at the hospital.

Carolling

Troops which will go carolling, as reported this week, are Troop No. 83 of Lafayette school, Mrs. Russell Walton, leader, which will sing carols Dec. 19 at the Duncan Nursing home; Troop No. 82 of Lincoln school, Mrs. Lee Gillis, leader, which sang carols at the Duncan Nursing home Dec. 15; and Brownie Troop No. 47 of South Jacksonville school which has made wonderful plans to sing carols on the streets of South Jacksonville from 6:30 to 8 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 19. The girls will be accompanied by their leaders, Mrs. Robert Patterson, Mrs. Ed Hewitt and Mrs. J. C. Pinkerton. In addition, several mothers of troop members will accompany the troop.

Intermediate Troop No. 27 of Jonathan Turner Junior High school, Miss Mildred Moser of MacMurray College, leader, made pine-cone earrings for Christmas this year. They used tiny cones about ½ an inch in diameter which looked like tiny rosebuds and covered them with gold paint. They also made other Christmas decorations from pine cones painted and decorated with glitter.

A new Senior Scout troop has been organized in Jacksonville High school and held its first meeting last Wednesday. The troop will meet the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month from 7 to 9 p.m. at the home of the leader, Mrs. Robert Gullion, 521 East College avenue. Any interested freshman or sophomore girls are invited to attend the troop meetings.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

To listen to some folks, you'd think gallantry went out with Sir Walter What's-his-name throwing down his coat so a queen could walk over a mud puddle. But a recent item proves it isn't quite dead yet. As any man knows, the ladies have a "thing" about telling their ages. In the past, a gentleman recording female info on a form or application either wrote "over 21" or just skipped it altogether. When computers came along, it looked like this consideration was at an end. But even electronics engineers have a bit of the gallant knight in them. A new computer is out that tells people's ages after receiving answers to 10 questions. The last question, however, is "Are you female?" If the answer is "yes," the machine automatically gives the age for all adult women as "21." To which the gals undoubtedly breathe a heart-felt "thank you, kind Sir!"

In Australia, a former driving instructor has opened an all-night service for chauffeuring drunken drivers safely to their homes. Going straight? For that perfect last-minute holiday gift for the wife, head straight for us and one of our fine late model used cars. Mechanically-sound and sharp and clean inside and out, our fine used cars are just the gift for the woman who wants safe, dependable transportation . . . plus the luxury of near-new looks. Come in soon. E. W. Brown, 406 South Main. Phone 5-4333.
